William Jennings Bryan suggested as presidential candidates Justice Brandeis of the Supreme Court and Martin F. Glynn, formerly Governor of New York State. Mr. Glynn said to this writer in Albany yesterday: "I expect to be elected on the twenty-sixth hundredth ballot."

There was, in spite of Mr. Glynn's facetiousness, an important meaning in Mr. Bryan's selection of those two names. One of the two men is a Catholic. The other, a Supreme Court judge and one of the ablest men in this country, is a Jew, and they are not "half way" about it. Glynn being very proud of his Catholicism and Justice Brandeis, in the highest sense, proud of his Judaism.

There were times in this country, unfortunately, when to suggest a Jew or Catholic for high offices would have been considered preposterous, mere seeking for political favor.

That day is past, and so much the better for the world.

"I was a damn fool for thinking I could pull this off and get away with it." Thus "Handsome Charley" Reshore epitomized the story of his crime and capture after killing the "king of the Spaniards," Manuel Gahin. "Handsome Charley" needed money; a lonesome friend of his, a lady, wanted to get back to her folks in Minneapolis. He pressed the revolver close to the heart of the sleeping Cuban to "muffle the noise," took six diamond rings, $1,140 in cash and bought himself three new suits, one bright green.

He admitted to the detectives that the green suit was the right color.

Often before criminals have said they were foolish to think "the thing could be pulled off." You do not hear that from any one of the great criminals who pulled off the stealing of billions from this government in war. They THOUGHT it could be "PULLED OFF." And it COULD.

"Handsome Charley" says the "king of the Spaniards," extraordinarily powerful, jumped up in bed as the bullet went through his heart, opened his eyes and uttered the one word "You!"

History repeats itself. That is about what Caesar said when he found Brutus stabbing him. But the three words of the almost king of the Romans will outlive the one word of the "king of Spaniards."

Dr. Straton, who exposes crime on week days and preaches on Sunday, says the interchurch movement failed "Colossally;" "greatest failure in the history of the Christian church."

Dr. Straton might find a match for that failure in some of the crusades, especially one that started "preceded by a goat and a goose," into which a guiding spirit was supposed to have descended from above. Concerning that Dr. Straton might read about the vanguards of 275,000 men, a disorganized rabble, with women and children, "driven to madness by disappointment and famine—expecting in their ignorance that every town they came to must be Jerusalem—in their extremity laid hands on whatever they could. Their track was marked by robbery, bloodshed and fire."

In the first crusade more than half a million men died. It was far more disastrous than the "Moscow retreat." That was really a "colossal" failure. Yet the Christians took Jerusalem in the end. The interesting thing about Dr. Straton's statement is his idea that the interchurch movement failed because it was based on "the vain dream of a man-made ideal society brought about by education, science and social service."

With all respect due to Dr. Straton's special illumination from above, the world will continue to believe with John D. Rockefeller, Jr., leader of the Interchurch movement, that even "man-made" movements can accomplish something.

One man-made movement freed the slaves, another freed this country from English rule. Man-made thought created the flying machine, the steam engine and gas engine and they freed man from the grip of gravitations. Man made movement will one day free children from slavery in mines and mills.

Inspiration comes from above, from the divine voice that said "Take heed that ye harm not one of these little ones." Given the idea, man does the work.

A serious business report says that woolen mills are closing down, including all but three of the great concerns whose manager recently slipped out of indictment. Work is stopped in shoe factories throughout New England. Sales of cotton goods in the Fall River district are the smallest in years.

Manufacturers with goods thrown back on their hands are trying to save themselves by great co-operative clearing-out sales, etc.

Moral for business: "Don't kill your goose that lays golden eggs. THE PUBLIC. Don't stick your profiteering fist too far down that goose's throat."

COX NOMINATED FOR PRESIDENT

HUSBANDS FEARED BY ELWELL

Annie Kane in Another Startling Interview Brings in Baltimore Woman

(Copyright, 1920, by Universal Service.)

Newry, County Down, Ireland, July 6.—Mrs. Annie Kane, housekeeper for Joseph Bowne Elwell up to four months before his murder in New York, who was discovered last Wednesday at her home in County Armagh through information supplied by the American, made fresh and startling revelations in a new exclusive interview today.

Supplementing suspicions that must be in the minds of the New York authorities, Anna Kane asserted:

That the murdered turfman lived in constant dread lest the husband of one of his most intimate women friends—who looms large in the New York District Attorney's investigation and who for the sake of convenience will be called "Madame X" in this story—would find out about Elwell's relations with this woman.

That she threatened during a quarrel with her employer to "tell on him" to the husband of "Madame X," whereupon Elwell fervently pleaded with her: "For God's sake, don't do that!"

MAN SOUGHT WIFE IN HOME.

That a man whose name she does not recall—evidently a foreigner—went to the West Seventieth street house one morning early and forced his way inside, demanding to know if his wife was with Elwell.

That "Madame X" and a woman who will be called in this story "Mrs. ——," were rivals for Elwell's affections, and that both of these wore the pink kimono found in the Elwell home.

The pink kimono was not the first

First Full Facts of Convict's Vacation

The amazing story of how Herman L. Barney, convicted of the murder of Patrolman Charles E. Deininger, escaped from Charlestown State Prison, how he lived like a king for thirty-six days, how he avoided arrest and was induced to surrender to District Attorney Nahan A. Tufts of Middlesex County begins today exclusively in the American.

This astonishing recital deals with dates, places, circumstances—all the real inside facts—and tears away the veil of mystery which until today shrouded the escape and voluntary surrender of Barney.

Nor did he work on any farm.

For several days after getting out of jail he was in Boston. During his thirty-six days' "vacation" he returned to Boston.

During the entire period he lived not the life of a hunted fugitive from justice, but a life of ease and luxury.

In beginning today the true story of Barney's escape and his amazing "vacation," the Boston American makes the statements most emphatically, despite repeated statements made by other sources that Barney spent his jail "vacation" working on a Brattleboro, Vt., farm.

During the time he was at liberty the convicted murderer and thief proved a constant source of worry to those who aided him in gaining and keeping his liberty, because he would not live the life of a fugitive.

He insisted on maintaining the existence of a rich and carefree youth, indulging his taste for silk shirts, automobiles, moving picture shows and theatres.

REFUSED TO HIDE.

He refused to ride the bumpers, or sleep in fields and barns. He refused to keep in hiding.

He courted the attention of police officers, and stood within a few feet of Governor Calvin Coolidge when the latter was welcomed home in Northampton.

One Boston police inspector, searching for Barney in the Pequot, allowed the convict to pass within a few feet of him. They eyed each

WOMAN DIES IN RIVER

Body of Miss Sara F. Barnes, Aged 60, Is Found in the Charles

The body of Miss Sara Frances Barnes, formerly a Pinkney street lodging house keeper, was found in the Charles River Basin on the Boston side near the Harvard bridge today.

The body of Miss Barnes, who was about sixty years old, was found by Patrolman Chisholm of the Metropolitan Park Police, and identification was made by a friend.

For a year the woman had made her home with Anna M. Hanna, who conducts a lodging house on West Cedar street, Beacon Hill.

The police say that so far as they could learn, Miss Barnes was not in financial difficulties, her health and mental faculties were good and she had no apparent reason for taking her own life.

She was seen at the West Cedar street house last night, and it was believed that she went out for a walk.

Early today it was found that the woman's bed had not been occupied and she was missing. The police stated that there were no marks of violence on the body.

FINED FOR NANTASKET FALSE FIRE ALARMS

Earl Shea of Nantasket was fined $15 today in Hingham court for sounding a false fire alarm. Numerous complaints of false alarms have been made by fire department officials in the vicinity of Hingham and Nantasket. In recent weeks, they said, the number of these useless runs has some nights been three or four. In the same court John J. Mulchahey of Boston and Leo Wegman of Quincy were each fined $5 for drunkenness.

SOMERVLLE BOY PAYS $50 FOR CARRYING GUN

William H. Avery, 17 years old, of Newton street, Somerville, was fined $50 today in Somerville Court for carrying a concealed weapon. He was arrested by Patrolman Wilfred after the latter had heard revolver shots from Prospect Hill tower and found Avery with a weapon and cartridges. Although Judge Wentworth suspended sentence until August 16, Avery paid at once.

Nomination of Cox Pleases Sinn Finn

By International News Service.

Dublin, July 6.—The nomination of Governor Cox for the presidency by the Democrats created a favorable impression here, although Sinn Fein leaders declared that they could not exactly regard it as a decisive advantage to their cause in the United States.

It was pointed out that Sinn Feiners regarded Mr. McAdoo with disfavor as the son-in-law of President Wilson. They were also opposed to John W. Davis, the United States Ambassador, because they believed his war record in Ireland had been tinged by his connection with Anglo-American societies.

CROWDS CHEER SENATOR REED

Homecoming Reception Given on Return to Kansas City

Kansas City, July 6.—Eight thousand men and women broke into a demonstration that lasted three minutes when Senator James A. Reed was presented by Judge Latshaw in Convention Hall at the homecoming reception in the Missouri Senator's honor. The crowd leaped to its feet, shouted and whistled, waving American flags, hats and newspapers.

Senator Reed told the audience he would have been seated as a delegate to the Democratic national convention if he had agreed to say nothing about the League of Nations.

"The administration forces in the committee won the debate," he said. "I wasn't there. But the 'grapevine' was brought to me 'if you'll just agree not to say anything against the league you'll have no trouble.'"

The statement was one of many points the Senator made that evoked further demonstrations.

He attacked the League of Nations, the President and the national convention. He charged that President Wilson had attempted to throttle discussion of the proposed league, probably fearing stupid Americans would not understand it.

He said that the administration had attempted to ruin every public man who had warned the American people of the dangers in the league.

"We're for you because you're a Democrat," someone yelled. Senator Reed nodded his head.

"We're behind you because you're an American," came another voice, whereupon the Senator nodded vigorously and smiled.

PRESIDENT WILSON CONGRATULATES COX

"Please accept my hearty congratulations and cordial best wishes. The telegram was written by the President in his own hand at 8:20, the time at which he was informed that Cox had been nominated.

Eames of Reading, both former State Senators, are opposing each other for the Republican nomination for the Governor's Council in the 6th district, succeed James G. Harris of Medford, who retired to run for State Secretary. The district extends from Acton, in Middlesex County, to Lynn, in Essex County.

OHIOAN NAMED ON 44TH BALLOT

The Democratic nomination for Vice-President was last night tendered to and declined by United States Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, it was announced today in a telegram to Major Thomas L. Walsh, the Senator's brother and law partner, from Charles Campbell of Worcester.

San Francisco, July 6.—Governor James M. Cox of Ohio was nominated for the Presidency by the Democratic national convention in the early hours of this morning, after breaking a deadlock which had held the convention through 44 ballots.

The end came suddenly and dramatically at 1:40 a. m., at the close of a night session which had witnessed the withdrawal of Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer and the slow beating down of William Gibbs McAdoo, President Wilson's son-in-law, by sheer force of votes.

The nomination was finally accomplished by acclamation at the end of the forty-fourth ballot, and Governor Cox will go into the official records as the unanimous choice of his party.

Actually, at the time of his nomination the Ohio Governor had 712½ votes, or 15½ less than the required two-thirds of the convention votes.

However, when the motion was made to make his nomination by acclamation, there were half a dozen delegations clamoring for the recognition of Senator Joseph T. Robinson, the chairman, in order to register changes in their votes which, if they had been recorded, would have given him a substantial majority over the required two-thirds.

"Miss Paul Revere" Is Rearrested

"Miss Paul Revere" is the name given by the police to Flora Sanford, sixteen-year-old runaway from the Industrial School for Girls at Lancaster, who was arrested today in Somerville by Patrolman Frederick G. Jones.

The girl told the police she escaped last Thursday, started to walk to Somerville, became tired and returned to the school, hiding in a hay loft until darkness. She then took a horse, she said, and rode to Concord, when the horse became lame and she put it up at a local table. She reached Somerville Friday night and had been spending the intervening time in riding about on trolley cars. She did not go to her home, which is on Pearl street, Somerville.

From various persons the girl obtained money and bought herself a new outfit, for which she exchanged her prison garb. She was returned to Lancaster. This is her fourth escape.

COX SATISFACTORY, SAYS SUFFRAGIST LEADER

Washington, July 6.—The National Woman's Party is interested only in securing suffrage for women," said Miss Alice Paul, leader of the militant suffragists, "and as Governor Cox is for woman suffrage we are satisfied with his nomination to that extent." Miss Paul said that her party would immediately ask Governor Cox to use his influences to bring Tennessee into line.

SUMMER CONCERTS TO COST BOSTON $13,728

Summer band concerts at the various parks will cost the city of Boston $13,728, according to an estimate by the Park and Recreation Commissioners. Of this sum nearly one-half will go to Stewart's Band, which will play 73 concerts on Boston Common. The remaining 35 concerts, a few of which will be on the Common, will cost $7,022.46, divided among six bands.

Japan to Seize All of Sakhalien

Exclusive Cable to the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Tokio, July 6.—Japan has decided to occupy the Island of Sakhalien, off the coast of Siberia, as reparation for the massacre of Japanese citizens by Russians, at Nikolaievsk, it was learned today.

The Japanese plan also to extend their occupation of the coast of the Siberian mainland.

(Sakhalien Island contains 30,000 square miles. Under the terms of the Portsmouth treaty Japan took the lower half and Russia retained the northern half.)

CITY AGENT REJECTS SINGLE BID ON MILK

Lack of competition among milk dealers and failure to bid on the grade of milk required caused City Purchasing Agent George J. Cronin to reject the bid of H. P. Hood & Sons, the only one received, for supplying milk and cream to the infirmary department for Long Island Hospital and Almshouse. With the approval of the Mayor, new bids will be called for. The bids of the Hood company were $1.18 for each 64-quart can on 2,400 cans of standard grade A milk, 23 cents a quart for 870 quarts certified milk, 30 cents a pint for 125 pints medium cream.

DEMAND 60 CENTS FOR MARLBORO BLUEBERRIES

Marlboro, July 6.—A price of 60 cents a quart, the highest on record, was demanded for blueberries in the local market today. A year ago at this time, the berries were selling for 20 cents, while in past years they have sold at much lower prices. The cause of today's high figures, it was stated, was inability to obtain pickers to harvest the large crop. Similar difficulty also was reported with regard to strawberries, which it was said also would be high.

BALL PLAYER, HURT BY AUTO, MAY NOT LIVE

Harriet Morrissey, twenty-six years old, of No. 56 Webster avenue, Chelsea, was in the Frost Hospital today so badly injured as a result of a collision with an automobile that surgeons feared he might not recover. Morrissey is said to have been playing ball at the corner of Webster avenue and Broadway when he was run down by an automobile owned and operated, the police say, by Joseph Jaskowsky of Charles street, Chicopee Falls.

GOVERNOR COX NOMINATED WITH A RUSH ON THE 44TH BALLOT

NOMINATION IS MADE UNANIMOUS ON MOTION OF MANAGER FOR McADOO.

The end of the long, gruelling fight, which had its beginning Friday night, found the delegates weary and heavy-eyed from lack of sleep. For nearly twelve hours they had sat in the hard seats of the auditorium keyed up to a high pitch of excitement, which had found outlet a score of times in mad, nerve-wrecking demonstrations.

Twenty-two ballots were taken during the day and it was not until midnight that any of them gave promise of developing a nominee. On the forty-third ballot, after Palmer had announced his withdrawal from the race and released his delegates, it became apparent that Governor Cox would be the nominee.

Not Even Cox Saw It.

It became then only a question of time. Two motions were made from the floor by McAdoo supporters to adjourn the convention until noon today, but each of them was howled down by Cox adherents.

Governor Cox polled 565 votes on the forty-third ballot. It was the first time that any of the candidates in the more than two days and nights of constant balloting had received a majority vote.

Between the forty-third and forty-fourth ballots the Cox people staged a memorable demonstration, a riotous procession, participated in by weary, delirious partisans, the scenes of which will live long in the memories of those who witnessed them.

The last ballot started by giving the Ohio Governor majorities from the very first. As State after State fell into line for Governor Cox it became certain that nothing short of a miracle could stop his nomination either on that ballot or the next succeeding one.

RUSH FOR THE "HAND WAGON."

When Pennsylvania was reached in the roll, sixty-eight votes were thrown to the Ohio Governor, and these, with the smaller delegations following, put him over the 700 mark.

A hundred pencils had been busy on the floor. Everyone knew that it was close to a nomination. Half a dozen chairmen of delegations which had voted for McAdoo, quick to scent the drift, leaped to their feet clamoring for recognition. They wanted to register changes in their votes.

They were a bit too slow. Unobserved by many, Samuel R. Amidon, national committeeman from Kansas and one of the McAdoo managers, had come quietly near to the edge of the speakers' platform. He tugged at Senator Robinson's elbow.

"The gentleman from Kansas," bellowed Robinson above the din.

The hall was in an uproar. Some of the delegates were singing. Others were standing on their chairs. Yells were rending the air mingling with the crashing music of two bands and the great pipe organ which almost completely covers one end of the huge auditorium.

At the sight of Amidon on the platform the noise lessened perceptibly. Amidon was one of the original McAdoo men. From the very first ballot on Friday night the Kansas delegation had voted its 20 for McAdoo right down the line, never wavering in its allegiance to the former Treasury head.

Amidon raised his hand for silence. Robinson was pounding madly with his gavel and the table was dancing under the force of his blows.

"I move," yelled the Kansan as soon as he could make himself heard, "I move that the nomination of Governor James M. Cox be made unanimous."

For a bare instant there was a hush. Then the hall was thrown into an uproar again by the yells that came from the throats of the 10,000 delegates and visitors who crowded the place. For five minutes the uproar continued. A parade had long since started, and into its hilarious procession went nearly every one.

A ROOM OF "AYES."

When he succeeded in restoring a semblance of order he put the motion of the gentleman from Kansas to the delegates. There was a roar of "ayes" to his question, and if there were any noes they were lost in the affirmative chorus.

Things started breaking favorably for Governor Cox at the beginning of the night session. Thirty-four ballots had been taken up to that time and on none of them had any of the leaders showed any formidable strength. McAdoo had passed Governor Cox on the thirtieth ballot in the late afternoon.

Veterans of the Baltimore convention eight years ago recalled significantly that it had been on the thirtieth ballot at Baltimore that Woodrow Wilson had passed Champ Clark. It was a coincidence that his non-intimation should so assume the lead on the same numerical ballot under circumstances that were almost identical.

For six ballots McAdoo held the lead, with Cox always close behind, and trailing the two of them was A. Mitchell Palmer.

The big Pennsylvania delegation augmented by Georgia's twenty-eight votes and a scattering of others, had kept the Attorney General always in the running.

When recess was taken for dinner at the end of the 36th ballot party leaders and delegates were calmer in unit in declaring that the situation was hopelessly deadlocked. Neither Cox nor McAdoo up to that time had succeeded in getting close to the two-thirds mark, let alone the 723 required for nomination.

PALMER WITHDRAWS.

On the thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth ballots, after the convention met in night session, the situation remained practically the same. McAdoo led on the thirty-eighth with 495¾ votes. Cox polled 353½ and Palmer 42.

Just after the official results of the thirty-eighth had been announced Charles S. Carlin, the Palmer manager, took the platform. He was introduced by Chairman Robinson as a man who had an important announcement to make.

"I am instructed," he said, "by A. Mitchell Palmer to inform those who have supported him that he greatly appreciates their loyalty. Mr. Palmer, however, is unwilling to delay the proceeding further and he has authorized me to release the delegates pledged to him so that the next President of the United States may be nominated here tonight."

Carlin then moved a twenty-minutes recess in order to give the delegates time to consider the matter. Within two minutes after he finished speaking a dozen excited conferences were going on about the floor.

BIG STATES SWITCH.

The one big question was, who was to fall heir to the Palmer strength? It was partly answered on the next ballot, the 39th. Connecticut, Massachusetts, Michigan, Rhode Island, Virginia and the District of Columbia, which had formerly given Palmer majorities of their delegations, switched over to Cox. The Palmer strength in Georgia, in Maine and in Porto Rico was given to McAdoo.

Pushed on own Pennsylvania delegation hung with him on the next ballot as a parting mark of respect. Later it gave a majority to McAdoo until the final 44th ballot, when it switched to Cox. The inheritance of so much Palmer strength again shot the Ohio Governor into the lead. He polled 468½ votes on the 39th ballot, and after that he was never headed. McAdoo had 440 on the same ballot.

On the fortieth ballot Cox went to 490. His strength acted as a magnet and drew additional strength. On the forty-first ballot he went to 487½; on the forty-second he shot ahead to 493½, on the forty-third he received 565, and on the next and last he went over.

THE "HAND WAGON" APPEARS.

McAdoo kept close behind him on the first two ballots after the Palmer withdrawal, but the outstanding opposition of Tammany, of New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Massachusetts and Illinois to his candidacy began to make itself felt, and in the end it was these States which beat him. Alone they could not nominate anybody, but their power was sufficient to prevent any one else getting it. Most of the delegates realized this fully, so that when the Cox hand wagon started it did not lack for passengers.

The delegates were tired. They wanted to go home. They had fought for three days over a platform. They had cancelled train reservations and had had to remake plans a half dozen times because of the fights which made this convention the most spectacular in years.

Tired had come the balloting. They had balloted and balloted with no result except confusion and a feeling of being hopelessly deadlocked. Moreover, they had been in their seats for twelve hours, hundreds, smokeless and heartily tired of the monotonous roll calls which led nowhere. The wagon came along and they climbed aboard, happy to get on.

McADOO HAPPY AND 'RELIEVED'.

Grateful to Friends for Support; "Delighted" That He Didn't Receive Call

By International News Service.

Huntington, Long Island, July 6.—"I am really relieved and delighted that the call did not come to me," said William Gibbs McAdoo to a group of friends and newspaper correspondents when he was informed today that the Democrats had nominated Governor Cox for President.

"Will you say this for me: I am eternally grateful to my friends for their support," said Mr. McAdoo to the newspaper men.

The former Secretary of the Treasury, who figured in the long deadlock at San Francisco, smiled broadly and showed not the slightest sign of disappointment.

He seemed to be actually happy over the outcome.

A group of reporters assembled at Scotchtown cottage, the McAdoo home, shortly after 2 o'clock and remained there until the result was flashed over the wires from San Francisco.

About 4:30 they received news of the nomination of Governor Cox and notified Oscar Price, a friend of the McAdoo family, who has been visiting at Southdown cottage for several days. Mr. Price hastened into the house and gave the news to Mr. McAdoo.

Mr. McAdoo, bareheaded, came out upon the porch smiling broadly.

"Good morning, gentlemen," he exclaimed heartily. "So it is all over. Well, that is fine."

After expressing his gratification over the result, Mr. McAdoo said he had no formal statement to make, but if he decided to give one out later it would be from his office in New York city.

Declares South Strong for Third Party

Sentiment in the South is strong for a third party, headed by Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California and Senator Reed of Missouri as vice-President, according to Peter F. Gloor, who returned over the Southern States for a Boston concern.

He said today that he believed Senator Johnson would accept the leadership of a third party if it were put up to him. "Senator Johnson would draw the Progressive vote of both the Republican and Democratic parties," he said.

"The people of the South are getting weary of Wilsonism. I have come in contact with all sorts of business men down there and I believe that if the League of Nations were put up to a vote of the people they would reject it. Democrats in the South are supporting Wilson and his league simply for policy's sake and the reputation of the solid South.

"I hope that the Committee of Forty-eight, which meets in Chicago this week, will nominate Johnson and Reed or Johnson and William Randolph Hearst, the latter as Vice-President. I don't know much about that Committee of Forty-eight, but they seem to be aiming at a new party, and voters dissatisfied with the old 'wormout' parties will watch its progress with interest."

'Surrender to Wets' Says Bryan

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

Written Exclusively for the International News Service.

Copyright, 1920, by W. J. Bryan.

San Francisco, July 6.—The nomination of Governor Cox signifies the surrender of the Democratic party into the hands of the reactionaries on both the liquor question and financial questions generally.

A candidate, like an individual, is to be judged by the company he keeps, and Governor Cox's company leaves no doubt as to the view entertained by those interested in the manufacture, sale and use of intoxicating liquor and by those who represent big business.

But while the two most dangerous elements in the country have taken control of the party for this campaign, it does not mean that either element will support the ticket.

The Republicans have nominated a wet candidate on a wet platform, although the wet element in their convention was not so noisy or impudent as it was at San Francisco.

Big business will not be interested in electing the Democratic candidate; it was simply interested in preventing the nomination of anyone who could make a campaign against its interests.

Wall Street will do this year as it did in 1904, namely, throw our candidate overboard and support the Republican ticket.

When the dry Democrats ran away from their greatest moral victory and allowed the convention to dodge the issue, it invited just such a nomination as has been made. With a dry plank we would have eliminated all wet candidates and then would have proceeded to select the best available man among the dry candidates.

It remains to be seen what position the candidate takes on the treaty question. Not having received the support of the administration, Mr. Cox may not give to the platform the same interpretation that the President or some of his intimate friends would have given. Now that the fight is over, the defeated candidates will have an opportunity to review the past and note the mistakes made.

Walsh Led Demonstration, Turned Tide for Cox

San Francisco, July 6.—Massachusetts Democrats played an important part in the nomination of Governor James M. Cox. After the 36th ballot, when Palmer withdrew, Daniel H. Coakley, leader of the Palmer delegates from Massachusetts, joined forces with Senator Walsh, leading the Cox delegates, and the union produced 33 of the 36 Massachusetts votes for Cox on the next ballot.

Following announcement of the Massachusetts vote by Senator Walsh, there was one of the loudest, longest and most colorful demonstrations of the convention. It was started by Senator Walsh. The Massachusetts standard led the way, and the Senator and the Cox forces followed behind, singing Cox campaign songs.

All but one of the Massachusetts delegates was for Cox on the last ballot.

John B. Sachetti, the dissenting vote, refused to vote for Cox, declaring he would not vote for any candidate Senator Walsh favored.

"The best man was nominated; I'm well in with him," said Senator Walsh with enthusiasm as it was over, and he was being congratulated on his support of Cox on every ballot. Cox men told the junior Senator that the demonstration he started for Cox during the thirty-ninth ballot was a big factor in putting the Ohio Governor over the top.

During recess last night a number of Democratic leaders, anxious to break the deadlock, met at the Palace Hotel in the room of Dr. John W. Coughlin of Hull River, and decided to ask the managers of Cox, McAdoo and Palmer to agree that the man having the highest strength on the fifth ballot should be given opportunity to demonstrate his strength with the other two out of the field, and that he, too, should withdraw if he failed to get what he required by two-thirds, after five more ballots.

The managers would not hear of any such agreement, but its suggestion hastened Palmer's withdrawal.

NEAR CRISIS IN MINE HEARING

Commission Decides Tomorrow on Admission of Profiteering Proof Against Operators

Scranton, Pa., July 6.—New England users of anthracite coal may learn why they have to pay $14.50 per ton for fuel tomorrow when the Anthracite Mine Commission, investigating the differences between mine workers and operators over a new wage scale, resumes sessions here. It depends on the attitude members of the commission take on the admission of seven exhibits offered by W. Jett Lauck, economic counsel for the mine workers.

The miner workers made the charge during recent hearings that profiteers; that they had exploited both the public and their employes in order to reap a great harvest. Seven of the twenty-one exhibits offered tended to support these charges as to the wide gulf with the costs of production of coal, cost of transporting it to tidewater and the gulf between the cost of production and the price per ton charged.

Strenuous objection to the admission of these seven exhibits was voiced by the operators.

Representatives of the miners maintained they were in a position to prove their charge that huge profits had been made by the operators.

Members of the commission took admission of the exhibits under advisement while testimony on the other fourteen dealing with wages, earnings and cost of living in the anthracite region was admitted. At adjournment last Wednesday all this testimony had been received, leaving disposal of the argument on the seven points the first thing to come up when the commission resumes its sessions tomorrow.

According to figures compiled from government statistics, the mine workers the average increase in dollars per gross ton from 1914 to 1918 for labor for coal ready for shipment at mine was $1.31. For the same period the average increase in retail price at Boston was $4.48 per ton, or three times the increase that was given to labor at the mines. Since January, 1919, wage rates in the mining industry have remained the same, and presumably there has been little change in the cost of producing coal, but retail prices there has been a further increase in prices, Boston now paying $14.50 per ton for coal which cost $12.75 per ton six months ago.

ELWELL FEARED MANY HUSBANDS, DECLARES ANNIE KANE

FORMER HOUSEKEEPER THINKS WOMAN KILLED TURFMAN

place of its kind Mr. Elwell had purchased for his women visitors, according to Mrs. Kane. It had a predecessor: one of blue silk with white roses. Both garments were purchased by the turfman at a store on Fifth avenue, the name of which Mrs. Kane gave.

A young woman from Baltimore (whose name the former housekeeper also supplied to the American) also wore the pink kimono at the Elwell home.

At least two women friends of Elwell (both of whose names have figured prominently in the New York inquiry) possessed keys to the "House of Mystery," according to Mrs. Kane.

KNOWS VIOLA KRAUS.

Mrs. Kane said she knew Viola Kraus von Schlegell, the beautiful young divorcee, who was identified by the District Attorney Friday as the "Pink Panama Girl." Miss Wilson, following the American's first exclusive interview with Mrs. Kane.

The former housekeeper reiterated that the women referred to in this story as "Madame X" and "Mrs. ——" were rivals, that Elwell transferred his attentions from one to the other and then changed again. "Mrs. ——," a woman recently drawn into the investigation, Mrs. Kane said flatly, is telling an untruth when she declares she has not been on intimate terms of friendship with Elwell for eighteen months. Mrs. Kane said she saw "Mrs. ——" in the Seventieth street house last Summer.

"Mr. Elwell was afraid of many husbands," Mrs. Kane declared.

Incidentally, she told of how she lived secretly in a room in the top of the Elwell home and thus was witness to the many "parties" and midnight revellings.

QUARRELED WITH ELWELL.

Here is Mrs. Kane's own story:

"One day I had a row with Mr. Elwell in the very room in which he was found shot. Elwell was very offensive to me. I became good and sore, but let him continue, then I said:

"'You forget all I did for you, Mr. Elwell, but I'm going to wound you.' He said:

"'What do you mean?' I said:

"'I'll tell Mme. X's husband about the goings on here.'

Note—Mrs. Kane here mentioned the name of one of Elwell's most intimate women friends who figures in the mystery.

"Mr. Elwell's attitude immediately changed. He said:

"'For God's sake, don't do that. Whatever passed between us now, let it be forgotten.'

"He appealed to me not to do it. I immediately said I wouldn't, because we were good friends again.

AFRAID OF MANY HUSBANDS.

"Mr. Elwell was afraid of Mme. X's husband learning about his (Mr. Elwell's) relations with her and about the goings on in his house.

(Note—Mrs. Kane again mentioned Mr. Elwell's woman friend who figures prominently in the murder mystery.)

"He was afraid of many husbands.

"For instance, one morning at 8 o'clock, last Summer, a man—and with a foreign accent—came to the door and asked if Mr. Elwell was in. I answered the door and told him Mr. Elwell could not be seen at that hour. He forced himself into the kitchen, where I spoke to him.

"He wore military trousers, and said he had just returned from France. He was very much excited. He said:

"'I have come to find my wife.'

"He said another man had told him Elwell had her in the house. He got almost hysterical as he told me the story. He broke into a foreign tongue with a sprinkling of English.

SOUGHT ACTRESS WIFE.

"He said his wife was a movie actress.

"Mr. Elwell was in bed at the time. I called up the dumbwaiter, 'There's a man here looking for his wife.'

"Mr. Elwell called down:

"'I know nothing about her. Put him out!'

"I told the man to go out, and as I had a lot of sympathy for him I told him to watch Mr. Elwell's automobile, which was waiting at the door.

"Mr. Elwell called down some time later and inquired if the man had gone. He told me that if the man called again I should tell him he (Mr. Elwell) had gone out through the back door.

"When Mr. Elwell went out to get into his machine the husband rushed up the street. Mr. Elwell dashed into his automobile. I asked the visitor when Mr. Elwell had disappeared what had happened. He was in a great rage. He replied that as Mr. Elwell had got into his machine he had called out:

"'Your wife has gone on with a touring company.'

CLEARS LINGERIE MYSTERY.

"I never knew what became of the stranger after that. I do not know his name.

"The detectives are making a lot of the lingerie found in Elwell's home. I can clear up that mystery. Last Summer Elwell handed me a box and said: 'Put that away—don't open it.'

"Well, that aroused my curiosity. I opened the box. It contained the pink kimono which the police are now talking about. It was bought at —— on Fifth avenue. No woman left that there. Mr. Elwell had bought it for the use of his visitors.

"'Mrs. —— was the first to wear it.'

"How do I know. Well, you see, I wasn't supposed to be living in the house, but when we returned from Palm Beach I couldn't get an apartment in New York. Therefore, with, out Mrs. Elwell's knowledge, I had a room in the top of the house and saw everything that was going on. Nobody ever knew that I saw.

"I saw a woman come night after night.

"One morning I saw Mrs. —— in the pink kimono."

"Mr. Elwell never had a pistol. The only weapon he ever had was a black jack in his Palm Beach home. My husband can confirm that.

WOMEN HAD KEYS.

"Mr. Elwell, when he had women in to eat with him always waited on them himself. He never wanted his servants to see them. I always noted this while I worked for him. It did appear extraordinary. His purpose, of course, was to allow us to see them either leave or enter. Therefore keys were supplied to the women.

"The front door of the house was always open. Frequently I found the door wide open at 8 in the morning. Apparently Mr. Elwell, when he entered, left someone going out, had forgotten to close it."

Mr. Elwell was not really a bad man as far as the servants were concerned. He always treated us with the greatest consideration, but women forced themselves upon him. I could see this when I read his letters for him—they were constantly asking him for money.

"Madame X. wrote him several letters during his illness; they were chock full of love and hopes for the next meeting.

"Madame X. absolutely made herself mistress of the house when she came. She usually stopped several days at a time.

ANGERED WHEN TURNED DOWN.

"Yes, I know Viola Krauss. She came to the house several times. Mr. Elwell knew her for about two years. He appeared to be fond of her.

"Mrs. —— was the woman most in love with him. She was absolutely crazy when Mr. Elwell turned her down. Madame X., but she got back into his affections again. He discussed Mrs. —— and Madame X. with a friend. At one night, who asked him whether he preferred one to the other. He apparently didn't know which of the two he liked best.

"A young woman from Baltimore also wore the pink kimono.

"One night, after Mr. Elwell had been to the races at Havre de Grace, he returned with this young Baltimore woman and another woman. They weren't the usual class of women Mr. Elwell went with. They stayed at his house two days.

"Prior to the arrival of the pink kimono there was another—one of blue silk, with white roses. It was kept for the use of his women visitors.

REAL LETTERS TO HIM.

"Mrs. —— was a frequent visitor last Summer. In fact, he once went to the home of her relatives, though I believe they didn't know what was going on, but entertained him as an ordinary friend.

"I had an opportunity of seeing letters come to Mr. Elwell, as when he was sick I acted as a trained nurse; he refused to call in another."

She was anxious to explain at the outset that she had not "run away from telling the truth."

"I want them to put the murderess where she belongs," she added emphatically, "and I'll do whatever I can to help them."

It is noteworthy that Mrs. Kane took it as a foregone conclusion that the criminal in the case is a woman. She later explained—as I have already called—that it is her conviction that "only a woman can have done it."

NINETY DRUNK CASES IN ROXBURY COURT

Roxbury was fairly blustous over the Fourth in spite of the eighteenth amendment. Ninety arrests for drunkenness were made by police of Roxbury Crossing and Dudley street stations Saturday night, Sunday and Monday. Forty-nine of the offenders faced Judge Hayden in the Roxbury court today, the others having been released. The docket of this court today was one of the largest in months, there being 140 cases before the judge. Fifty of these were charges of larceny, loitering, or breaking and entering.

Governor Cox Noted for His Loyalty to Party

Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, Democratic nominee for President, and Mrs. Cox, with their baby, Anne.

James M. Cox, Governor of Ohio and Democratic nominee for President, was born in Jacksonburg, that State, March 31, 1870. He began playing politics when at school and has kept it up ever since. He followed the best teachers, rigidly obeyed all the rules, selected the best models in a school in which politics is reduced to an exact science. He played with the best of them and with a tireless energy that he still exhibits at fifty.

When he first was elected Governor the Republicans said he was "an accident." The second time he defeated his Republican opponent his critics conceded he had "some ability in politics." Now he is serving his third term.

The National Democratic leaders credit him with having contributed more to their party than any other Democratic Governor in the country.

He has been unswerving in his allegiance to President Wilson. The latter has frequently called on him for aid and advice.

WAS PRINTER'S DEVIL.

A brief outline of his career reads:

Educated in the public schools.

Printer's devil.

School teacher.

Newspaper reporter.

Private secretary to a congressman.

Member of Congress three terms.

Editor.

Governor of the State three terms.

In 1917 he married Miss Margaret Blair of Chicago, Ill.

In 1898 he purchased the Dayton Daily News and became the owner of the Springfield Press-Republic in 1903, and formed the News League of Ohio in the same year.

The progressive achievements to the credit of his administration include:

A model workman's compensation act, a child labor law that has been copied by other States, a mother's pension system, the initiative and referendum, a scientific budget system, a prison farm to provide healthy occupation for convicts, the compensation for which is given to their dependents, the elimination of "sweatshops," a "blue-sky" law to protect Ohio investors, a reform of the school system, consolidation of useless bureaus, resulting in a substantial saving to the State, a time limit on food products held in cold storage, and many reforms in the laws intended to protect the interests and labor of farmers.

IN HARD BATTLES.

When Mr. Cox first proposed some of these projects he was charged with being "too radical." But he made them the issues in his last two campaigns and the voters indorsed them—and him. The most important business interests lined up against him and he was marked for slaughter.

One of the stiffest fights the Ohio Governor ever made was for the radical amendment of the State Constitution in 1912. It was a battle characterized by intense bitterness and opposed by the reactionary elements in both the Democratic and Republican parties, supported by the big business interests of the State.

He won and contributed a good deal to rolling up a record-breaking majority for President Wilson at a time when the Roosevelt movement was making a strong appeal to public sentiment in the State.

The recent undertakings of the Ohio Governor in trying to force down the high cost of living and compel the operation of the coal mines in the State have inspired praise.

FAVORS SUFFRAGE.

His critics admit that he has a strong hold on the party in Ohio. While not a Prohibitionist, he has ordered the rigid enforcement of the law, and the drys have no fault to find with him on that score. He is an ardent champion of woman suffrage.

One of the strongest arguments advanced in his favor is his respect for the home rule rights of communities. This he displayed last Summer when he refused to interfere in the professional prize fight between Dempsey and Willard at Toledo. His position was that if the people of Toledo wanted the fight it was a matter for them to settle and not the rest of the State. Toledo did want it, and no amount of outside clamor influenced the Governor to interfere.

The Ohio Governor is a fine horseback rider, a crack shot and a fine all-round Western type. He makes friends very easily and holds them. Anybody can approach him sure of a hearing and a ready answer. He is an effective campaigner, a rough-and-ready debater, takes things as they come, is a good "mixer," remembers men, tells a good story and likes one.

His friends say that he always keeps his word and therefore retains the respect of the people with whom he deals. He is a tireless worker.

The supreme delight of his life is his home at Dayton, O. It is called "Trail's End," and is one of those many magnificent homes in the State of Ohio that have carried on the traditions of the plantations in the Old South.

THREAT TO BOLT BY BELGIUM

Will Repudiate Treaty if Not Granted Indemnity Priority Says Delacroix

By International News Service.

Spa, Belgium, July 6—There were evidences of dissension among the allied statesmen when the second session of the Spa conference opened today. Premier Delacroix of Belgium, at a private discussion of indemnity among the allied delegates, is reported to have made the threat that Belgium would withdraw from the Treaty of Versailles if the clause granting priority of payment to Belgium was not carried out.

The meeting at which Belgium's withdrawal threat was made began last night. Premier Lloyd George proposed that Jugo-Slavia be granted priority with Belgium in the matter of German reparations.

Premier Delacroix bristled at this suggestion. He finally informed his colleagues that the priority clause granting initial payments of one-man indemnity to Belgium was part of the peace treaty and wound up by saying that if the allies rejected the British premier's plan, Belgium would repudiate her signature on the treaty. The meeting then broke up.

Herr von Gessler, German Minister of Defense, arrived from Berlin during the morning to make his report on military matters to the conference. He said he was ready to answer all questions that might be put to him by the allied statesmen.

To the International News Service Herr Gessler said: "I have not changed my mind about conditions in Germany and I maintain that Germany must have an army of 200,000 for her protection. The victories of the Russian Bolsheviks over the Poles is a menace to Germany which makes it imperative for us to have an army to defend ourselves in the East."

BIG PARADE CLOSES MAINE'S CENTENNIAL

Portland, Me., July 6.—A military and historical parade and the most elaborate display of fireworks ever seen in the State were included in the closing program of the Maine centennial celebration.

Twenty-three floats representing Maine's history were the feature of the parade. Sailors and marines from the American, Japanese, British and Portuguese warships in the harbor were included in the line of march. Artillerymen from the forts, the Canadian veterans and the Third Infantry Regiment completed the roster.

ACQUITS CHAUFFEUR OF CHILD'S DEATH

Judge Hayden of Roxbury today refused to issue a warrant of manslaughter against Edward Oberle of Sheridan street, Jamaica Plain, driver of a Yankee Brew Company truck that struck Dorothy Lucke, nine years old, near her home on Prentiss street, Roxbury, causing injuries from which she died. Judge Hayden said the evidence showed there was no blame upon Oberle and ordered him discharged.

MRS. BELMONT IN NEW PARTY PLEA

Suffrage Leader Urges Women to Rebuke Organizations Which Ignored Them

New York, July 6.—Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, in a statement given out at her home, calls upon the women of the United States to refuse to throw their power to the old political parties, where she believes their influence will be practically negligible.

"Stop and consider well," she says, "what have men's parties done for civilization that they should merit our joining them as they exist today?"

DEFIES OLD PARTIES.

Mrs. Belmont's statement breathes defiance to the two old parties. It says in part:

"Today men celebrate their political independence. Today I appeal to you women voters of the United States to rise and assert your political independence, that future generations may celebrate your victory.

"Women voters, strong in numbers and potential in power, you can be, if you will, a new force in modern civilization. At a time when the whole world is crying out for something better, are you going to be that something better?"

"TRAVEL A NEW PATH."

Calling attention to the failure of man's government after nineteen centuries, she says: "Come out of the herd. Dare to travel a new path. Suffragists did not fight for your emancipation for seventy years to have you become servants of men's parties."

Mrs. Belmont concludes by admonishing women to keep away from the Republican and Democratic parties, who ignored them when it came to selecting candidates and writing their platforms. "By this refusal," she says, "tie consort with admitted evils, you will get new strength."

SOMERVILLE BARBER BELIEVED DROWNED

Paul Orlando, aged twenty-six, son of Philip Orlando, of No. 330 Lowell street, Somerville, is thought to have been drowned in Silver Lake, Wilmington. A number of young men with whom he was spending the week-end found his clothes upon the shore of the lake. It is supposed that he was seized with cramps while swimming alone. Dynamite and grappling irons were used repeatedly in vain attempts to recover the body. He was employed in the barber shop of his father at No. 536 Medford street, Somerville.

THREE-YEAR-OLD GIRL FALLS FROM WINDOW

Dorothy Cotter, aged three, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cotter of No. 227 Paris street, East Boston, fell from a second-story window to the paving, 16 feet below.

She was rushed to the East Boston Relief Hospital, where she was treated for serious abrasions and possible internal injuries. Her name was placed on the danger list.

PLOT FOUND TO KILL CANDIDATE

Conspirators Demanded $40,000 from Illinois Aspirant for Governor

Chicago, July 6.—An alleged conspiracy to murder Len Small, Republican candidate for Governor of Illinois, was disclosed here with the arrest of Byron Caudell and Newcomb Palmer, farmhands.

The conspirators are charged with threatening Mr. Small's life unless he complied with a demand to place $40,000 at a lonely spot on a road between Kankakee and Momence.

The arrested men were both employed on farms near Momence. Detectives who took the men into custody acted under the personal direction of Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, who, after being shown a "death letter" to Mr. Small, decided the men were in earnest.

Palmer is said to be wanted for murder at Lebanon, Ky. Caudell is said to have confessed his share in the plot.

Mr. Small is a wealthy farmer of Kankakee. He is influential in Illinois, and his candidacy for the gubernatorial position is backed by Mayor Thompson.

PLAYGROUNDS DRAW CROWDS IN LEXINGTON

The Summer playground season opened in Lexington, Mass., this morning with large attendances. Miss Miriam Reardon, a graduate of the New Haven Normal School of Gymnastics, is supervisor at the center playground, and Miss Anne Monkley, graduated from the Lexington High School in June, is head of the East Lexington playground. The grounds will be open each week-day morning and afternoon, except Saturday, when only morning sessions will be held.

STABBED BY CHUM, ASSUMES BLAME

An act on the part of one of several children playing in front of No. 8 Stanford street, West End, caused an argument between Walter Downing, forty-one years old, of No. 7 Stanford street, and Frank Chase of No. 49 Stanford street, life-long chums, which resulted in Chase stabbing Downing twice.

According to the police, Downing assumed all blame for the argument, Chase was not held.

By serving Jiffy-Jell Real-Fruit Desserts

Jiffy-Jell desserts are rich in fruit. A bottle of condensed fruit juice comes in each package.

They are ready-sweetened and acidulated. You simply add boiling water, as directed on package, then the liquid fruit essence from the vial. Also mix in fresh fruit, if desired, and let cool. No sugar required.

Jiffy-Jell is economical. One package serves six.

It saves your sugar, for we put the sugar in it.

It is rich in fruit, for the bottle of flavor is the condensed juice of much ripe fruit.

Millions have adopted Jiffy-Jell as the ideal fruit dessert. Serve it now when sugar is so scarce. Add fresh fruit or berries if you like.

Also try lime-fruit flavor for tart, green salad jell. Also mint flavor for mint jell to serve with meats.

DEMAND THIRD PARTY

"People Disgusted" With Old Lineup Under Lash of Wall Street, Says Leader

New York, July 6.—Delegates of the American Constitutional party, representing 33,000 enrolled members in six Eastern States, met Saturday at Arlington Hall, St. Mark's place, New York city.

Firm belief was expressed that the action and platform of the Democratic convention at San Francisco would not satisfy progressive Democrats any more than the action and platform of the Republican convention would satisfy progressive Republicans.

The delegates thereupon adopted a platform for the American Constitutional party and decided to call a national conference to meet in Chicago for the purpose of placing a solid ticket in the field for the presidential campaign.

There were delegates from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and a proxy from a council in West Virginia. The hall was packed with enthusiastic adherents of the new party, who cheered the platform and who listened to speeches until long after midnight.

The mass meeting adopted a resolution calling upon William Randolph Hearst to lead the new movement in the coming fight.

Continually, throughout the meeting, as speaker after speaker mentioned them, the names of Hiram Johnson, William E. Borah and James A. Reed were cheered.

PEOPLE'S CHOICE SANDBAGGED.

When Johnson's name was referred to by Julian B. Thomas, one of the organizers, the crowd burst into a great cheer and heartily applauded as Thomas told "how the people's choice had been sandbagged by a ring from Wall Street, who ran the Chicago convention from a suite of rooms in the Blackstone Hotel."

Later when Edward T. O'Loughlin, ex-register of King's county, described how "the corporation press throughout the country" was preparing to attack Senator James A. Reed because it was feared he might accept the nomination at the hands of a third party, one of the delegates yelled: "That's all right—a knock from that gang is a boost with us." It was one of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held in Arlington Hall, which in the past ten years has been a popular meeting place for third party movements.

MANY COUNCILS RESPOND.

Thomas J. Mahoney, the provisional president of the executive committee of the party in the East, opened the meeting and delegates responded for the following fully organized councils:

Philip Livingston No. 1, Battle Pass Council No. 2, Thomas Jefferson Council No. 3, Betsey Ross No. 4, George Washington No. 5, John Hancock No. 6, Lafayette No. 7, Star Spangled Banner No. 8, Patrick Henry No. 9, Valley Forge No. 11, General John Sullivan No. 12, Commodore Barry No. 13, John Adams No. 16, Minute Men No. 17, Independence No. 18, William Penn No. 19, Marty R. Ship No. 20, Ethan Allen No. 22, Wyoming Valley No. 25, Anthracite No. 26, Roger Sherman No. 31, Nathan Hale No. 37, Fort Green No. 40, Constitution No. 43 and Yankee Doodle No. 49.

Letters were also read, and, in some cases, proxies accepted from among the following councils: Lexington Council No. 10, Massachusetts; Baron Steuben Council No. 14 and Wallabout No. 21, of New York; Monmouth Council No. 42, of New Jersey; Israel Putnam Council No. 55, of Connecticut; Falkenil Hall No. 58 and Bunker Hill No. 60, of Massachusetts; General Montgomery Council No. 67, of New Jersey; Charles Carroll Council No. 73, of Maryland, and Benjamin Franklin Council No. 81, of Philadelphia.

Letters were also read from Paul Revere, Fort Dearborn and Paul Jones Councils of Illinois telling of rapidly increasing membership in the Middle West.

Chairman Mahoney, in opening, said that the people from one end of the country to the other were disgusted with both of the old parties.

PREDICTS A SWEEP.

"They will not stand for the toll of the money interests selected at Chicago," said he, "any more than they will accept the choice of the dynastic party that is now going through the farce of a convention in San Francisco. The time has come for the people to break their chains, and we propose to make history here tonight by starting the ball rolling for a third party movement that is sure to sweep the country from one end to the other."

Julian B. Thomas, as he read the platform, which was unanimously adopted, told how "the boys in the trenches, fighting for democracy abroad, got $33 a month, while the profiteers, robbing their mothers and sisters at home, got millions and millions of blood money."

Edward T. O'Loughlin, who had been selected by the executive committee to visit Chicago and the Middle West to ascertain the growth of the party there, next made a report in which he said he found organizations being formed in Illinois, Iowa, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota.

"The whole Middle West is aflame with third party sentiment," said O'Loughlin. "The people are clamoring to get into this movement. It makes no difference which state it is, or what city, town or village. The disgust on every hand is the same. They want a new deal, and they are determined to have it. The death warrant of the old machines has been signed, sealed and will soon be executed."

CALL FOR NEW PARTY.

The greatest enthusiasm of the evening came when the following statement was offered by Thomas F. Keirnan, of Philip Livingston Council No. 1, and after being seconded by John D. Rosenbrock was adopted with cheers:

"The conditions confronting the people today are such as to inspire, in the minds of patriotic Americans throughout the land, a feeling of misgiving that the principles upon which the American Fathers founded this Republic are slowly but surely being undermined by un-American influences, directed not only from sources at the bottom, but, still more dangerous, by those at the very top of American society.

"These influences are much as to render null and void all those priceless privileges for which the fathers fought—a free press, free speech and peaceable assemblance—to appeal for the redress of wrongs, and, in general, the upbuilding of this free government of the people as against the encroachment of aplocracy, whether at home or abroad.

"We have seen our soldiers willingly and enthusiastically give up their lives to preserve democracy abroad, while seemingly it has been destroyed here at home.

"The situation is such that it calls for the leadership of some great, fearless and courageous American to take helm in a movement to restore to the people those privileges of which the nation seems in danger of being robbed.

"The two old machines, controlling the two old parties, appear to be controlled in turn by the Wall Street ring and its foreign financial and diplomatic alliances, which are responsible for the conditions—industrial, political and economic — which exist throughout the land today."

Beginning Today—A Great Event in Fine Silk Waists

5000 New Georgette Waists

BACK TO THE OLD PRICES OF 1914

Former Selling Prices 7.50, 9.00 and 10.50

FIVE thousand Georgette Waists—this represents between forty and forty-five thousand dollars' worth—a great investment in waists. But when brought down to the prices of 4.95, which reduces them to about twenty-five thousand dollars, you take off between fifteen and twenty thousand dollars. A great saving. It took us more than three weeks to make this trade on waists. We went to two of our best manufacturers and asked them if they could devote practically the entire output of their factories for a week or two to an order which we would place for about fifty hundred waists. They said they could. The next thing was prices—the prices of 1914. The waists we wanted were to be in the best models of the season, and we said: "These waists have been selling for 7.50 to 10.50, some of them even higher, but we must get them down to prices of six years ago. Can you do it?" They figured on them, and one maker said he would make twelve hundred—we told him we required about thirty-three hundred. Another said he could not make even twelve hundred—he had not the material. We knew there were Georgettes in the market at a low price, and we bought them to help out the transaction. In manufacuring, making in quantity is the sure road to economy—it saves waste and saves time; and these skilful makers finally decided to go ahead with the orders. Then we purchased at the same great reduction five hundred Misses' Waists from several makers who had them in stock.

4.95 and 5.95

Important Points

Three Thousand have arrived—the others are on the way.

The entire five hundred Misses' Waists have arrived.

The Waists are made from a very fine quality of Georgette, in white and just the right shade of flesh.

White has been very scarce in Georgette, due entirely to the demand—plenty in this great offering.

Every Waist is new—they are the most becoming and fashionable waists of the season and every one is an assured model, with just the proper lines.

A strong style feature is that many have Jabots and coat frills, and frills seem to be about what everyone wants. Other models with square neck, vestee effects, which are becoming to almost every type of figure. Models with round neck, and smart turn-over collar effects, type for the miss or small woman. Waists with short sleeves and others with long sleeves. And the great feature is, about all have set-in sleeves, and set-in sleeves make a waist fit comfortably.

Five Hundred Misses' Dresses

Satin, Taffeta, Serge, Crepe Meteor, Georgette

Values 25.00 29.50 32.50 35.00

Every Dress New—Every Dress Perfect—Every Dress Fresh

WE took about everything a fine manufacturer had—all the new dresses that he had just made up, among which there are ten, fifteen, twenty and more of a kind—all the dresses which he had in stock, of which there are only one, two, three or four of a kind—all the new Serge Dresses which he had just made up for Fall, of which there are about twenty-five—all the Georgettes he had made up for this coming August, of which there are about fifty-five—all the new Satin—some in fairly good sized quantities, but not too many of any one kind. Taffeta Dresses were the strong feature of the line because taffeta is certainly stylish and the styles most becoming this year—there were several hundred of them. And then there were from fifty to seventy-five of his model dresses, some of which turn out too expensive to make up in quantity. But they all went in; and they were all at a round price. The important point is that a large number of these dresses were intended for next Fall. We told the maker that it was too late for Spring—the Summer was too short—and the Fall is not here, and that if he wanted to sell them now he would have to sell them very cheaply. So we figured them up; the average price at retail as nearly as we could figure it would be about 35.00. We told him we wanted to sell them at half price. We failed to get them so we could do that, but we did get them to sell at just a little more than half price, that is, 18.75. And they are among the great values we have offered because they are all new and fresh, not the least bit shop-worn—a brand new lot of dresses.

Two Hundred New Foulard Dresses

For Women

Dresses that would usually sell for about 40.00—made to our order from our own models

WE have been endeavoring for the past three or four weeks to purchase Foulard Dresses that we could sell for 25.00, but could find nothing to suit us. We then went into the market to buy Silk Foulards by the yard, and owing to the decline in silk prices we were able to secure a quantity of the best quality Foulards at a very low price. As we are doing a large business in dresses of all kinds, we were able to induce one or two of our largest and best manufacturers to make up these Foulards at actual cost of production. We selected four of our very best models, and the makers went ahead with the order for 200 Dresses. They have just been received and the result is marvelous. We had no idea that we could offer such stunning Foulard Dresses at anywhere near 25.00, as they formerly sold for about 40.00. The styles are just right, the colors are correct, and the dresses are exceptionally well made.

RESTORE MONEY TO HEIRESSES

More Than $150,000,000 in Enemy Alien Property Will Go Back to Owners

Washington, July 6—The first distribution of the enormous holdings of enemy alien property in this country is soon to begin, it is officially announced.

More than $500,000,000 was involved in the seizures of enemy property in the United States at the outbreak of war. Of this amount $150,000,000 is shortly to be returned to its original owners, under authorization of an amendment to the trading with the enemy act passed by Congress June 5.

The fortunes of a number of American heiresses are involved in the projected distribution, which also embraces the property of the German embassy enemy diplomats, interned aliens, citizens of new nations and States created by the treaty of peace, as well as women of allied or neutral countries who married enemy subjects.

All Americans interned in Germany during the war on account of illness, insanity or any other reason, are to have their property returned.

In brief, the alien property custodian will review favorably the applications for returns of seized property from all those persons not now citizens or subjects of Germany, Austria or Austria-Hungary. This ruling will insure restitution of property to many former citizens of the two empires who are now subjects of new States or liberated territories.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

INSIDE STORY OF BARNEY CASE

Full Facts of His Escape and Surrender Are Revealed to Public

other critically. Barney passed on jauntily and unchallenged.

On this occasion he was uniformed as an English aviator and the only manner in which his face was disguised was by a pair of green glasses.

In outside places he enjoyed himself by speaking to policemen, on one occasion borrowing a match from a Maynard policeman. He was wearing the uniform of a major in the United States Army at the time.

In Marlboro, feeling the need of mental relaxation, he approached a policeman and for some ten minutes joked with him about "this desperate man Barney." On this occasion he wore only a finely tailored suit as a disguise.

One of the most daring of his exploits was when he entertained a group of young women at a Medford house party by a piano recital. He was introduced to the girls as a visitor to the house, and delighted them by his charming conversation, fine manners and elegant dress. Someone suggested that he play the piano, and seating himself at the instrument Barney played for several hours while the young women applauded vigorously.

MADE POLICE FRIENDS.

On every possible occasion he made it a point to win new friendships in police circles by exhibiting his finely cut clothes, his conversation and his diversified talents.

He boasted frequently that the police were afraid of him, and on every occasion showed that he believed this.

This astounding recital tells how the escape was plotted and replotted inside the gray walls; how once the plot was discovered, and temporarily thwarted, only to be revived again within a short time.

It gives the first true story of how Barney, aided by the "master mind" among the most desperate and clever men confined at Charlestown, finally got out of confinement after a nap taken by Barney again had nearly wrecked their plans, and how, because of this short sleep, Barney received an injury which will shorten his life.

The story reveals for the first time that guards shot at Barney outside the corridors of the jail, and how the prisoner, with a gun stolen from one of the guards, stumbled through the long gray lanes donning his clothes. Several fusillades of bullets from the guns of the guards showered around Barney as he fled amid the general uproar, as the lead rebounded from the walls either side of him.

When Barney reached the outside walls with confusion reigning on every hand guards firing frantically at him, he found his two companions had left him behind. As he paused to consider which way they might have gone he was the target for another volley of shots from the roof.

JUMPED FORTY FEET.

Now fully awake, Barney jumped forty feet from the tallest part of the wall into the railroad yards beneath.

He fell with terrible force, landing on his side, and sustaining the injury to his nose which caused the recurrence of an old trouble for which he was under treatment while in jail.

For a short time he was stunned. No attempt was made by the jail authorities to go down the wall after him, but as consciousness dawned again the sound of the guards still firing volley after volley from the roof blended in his startled ears with the sound of a high powered motor fast vanishing in the distance. Barney realized that his companions had deserted him.

In the speeding car were Charles Manster, convicted of the murder of Patrolman Joseph Reiser and serving a life sentence, and the latter's sweetheart, who played no part in effecting the escape.

Barney, in his stocking feet, walked the Boston & Maine railroad tracks towards Somerville. He passed through Union square without meeting anyone who gave him more than passing notice. From Union square he turned into Somerville avenue, proceeding towards Davis square, West Somerville.

SAW THREE POLICEMEN.

As he approached Davis square he saw three policemen standing in front of the Boston & Maine railroad station. They were talking together.

Believing that the alarm had been given and that the policemen were looking for him, Barney went into the first back yard he came to.

On the back stoop were two quart bottles of milk. From a distance came the rumble of a milk wagon.

Barney rolled up the legs of his trousers, picked up the two bottles of milk, and whistling a sprightly tune, went out of the yard.

Still whistling, he strolled slowly through Davis square, passing in front of the three policemen, who took him, as he meant to be taken, for a milkman's "striker."

As he passed the trio he nodded to them and waved one of the milk bottles at them.

At a corner conveniently out of sight of the police, Barney deposited the milk bottles in a yard and, without hastening or slackening his pace, turned toward Cambridge.

Without money and suffering considerable pain from the result of the drop from the wall at State Prison, Barney made his way to a house in Cambridge, where he felt sure of being sheltered and receiving aid.

He experienced no difficulty in being admitted to the house. The rest of the day he spent in resting while his friends searched for shoes and clothes with which he might proceed to enjoy his unique "vacation."

Barney has a very small foot, wearing a number five of narrow last, and considerable difficulty was found in securing footgear for him. Barney insisted on shoes of fashionable shape and would not accept "hand-me-downs." In the matter of clothes, too, he proved most fastidious, and gave his friends much trouble in getting garments that met with his ideas of what he should have.

'PASSERS-BY' PRESENTED AT PARK

PARK THEATRE—J. Stuart Blackton's production of C. Haddon Chambers' play, "Passers-By," was presented at the Park Theatre yesterday.

Few modern plays have been more successful than "Passers-By." Its theme is one that is ever near to the human hearts, the reasons of the love of a man for a woman who had strayed by the wayside through misunderstanding.

Gerald du Maurier played Peter Waverton in the original cast when the play enjoyed a record run in London, and when it was brought to America, Richard Bennett and Charles Cherry played the same role, now portrayed by Herbert Rawlinson.

COLUMBIA THEATRE—A program of excellence attracted the holiday crowds of yesterday to Loew's Columbia Theatre. Shirley Mason was shown in the photoplay romance, "Love's Harvest," together with Harry Morey in "The Sea Rider." Today's offerings include House Peters in "Closed Roads" and a big under-water production, "Girl of the Sea."

UPHAMS CORNER STRAND—How a city youth, who wouldn't take a dare until an entire community condemned a defenseless girl, for whom the fates had provided nothing better than a memory of a distressing early life, rescued and wed her, served as the basis for the exciting human story that is told in "The Fighting Shepherdess," starring Anita Stewart, being shown at the Uphams Corner Strand.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—Joyous holiday crowds enjoyed yesterday's program at Loew's Orpheum Theatre, and each and every act of the all-star bill was accorded an enthusiastic reception. Marietta Craig and her talented company offered a delightfully clever one-act comedy, "The Girl in the Dark." Fields and O'Neal in a skit styled "Burlesqueology," have ideas all their own. Irene Trances, in a revue of popular songs, pleased, and Clay and Robinson, with an abundance of songs and wit, kept up the spirit of fun. The Crouch Richards Trio gave a musical surprise that was spectacular.

GLOBE THEATRE—Enthusiastic holiday throngs found an abundance of entertainment at Loew's Globe Theatre, yesterday. Sessue Hayakawa, whose portrayals of Oriental characters are unsurpassed, and have won for him the distinction of being classed as the Booth of the screen, was shown in his latest photodrama, "Li Ting Lang."

MODERN AND BEACON—Beautiful Billie Burke returned to the screen after an absence of several months in "Away Goes Prudence," a fascinatingly funny Paramount Artcraft production, at the Modern and Beacon Theatres yesterday. The feature scored a hit.

DARING FLIER HOLDS THRONGS SPELLBOUND

All activities came to a sudden standstill yesterday when the holiday throngs of amusement seekers at Revere saw an airplane come tumbling down to within a few feet of the water, where the spectators could see the daring exploits of Dare Devil Jack Murphy, who clambered about the plane doing all sorts of acrobatic stunts. After he had held the crowd spellbound for some minutes he made a daring descent in his especially constructed parachute, and when he landed the crowd drew a long breath of relief and were thankful that he was safe.

Plays That Remain

MAJESTIC THEATRE—Rex Beach's "The Silver Horde," the new Goldwyn-Beach production, continues its second week at the Majestic Theatre.

TREMONT THEATRE—With two holiday performances yesterday, "Mary" entered the third month of its sensational stay at the Tremont Theatre. This George M. Cohan production is proving the greatest success in Summer shows that Boston has ever had.

TREMONT TEMPLE—"Kathleen Mavourneen," the big William Fox special production, which began its second week at Tremont Temple yesterday, is the best Irish photoplay ever seen here. Charles J. Brabin, director and author, drew his inspiration for the picture from the famous poem.

LIVELY DANCE ACT SCORES AT KEITH'S

"Frivolics," at B. F. Keith's Theatre this week, is setting the pace for dancing reviews of the season. William Seabury has a sextet of terpsichore artists that present some new steps in a way that takes one's mind off the heat. The entire bill is good.

This season has surpassed all others for the dancing craze, but the headliner at Keith's can be classed with the best. "Judge" Seabury performs some original steps that please. But there are others on the program that merit notice.

A modern Svengali-master mind" sets the audience guessing as to how he manages to command "his Trilby" to sing pieces requested by the audience without speaking to her. Clark and Verdi, the Italian comedians, are there and they garner many a laugh, with a basket of statuary as their subject.

Chester Kennedy and Frank Nelson do some clever tumbling, little Jessie Middleton shows how a violin should be played, and Emerson and Baldwin have a comical sketch, in which they perform stunts in an unexpected manner. Some rare harmony in song is that given by the three Misses Dennis.

There are also Brenck's posing horse and Billy McDermott, who rates himself the only survivor of Coxey's army. The usual Kinograms and Topics of the Day complete the bill.

CODMAN SQUARE THEATRE—Throngs of holiday amusement seekers were well pleased by the program offered yesterday at the Codman Square Theatre, Dorchester. Frank Mayo, whose ability as a screen star has placed him on the ladder of fame, was shown in a picture appealing photodrama, "The Girl in 29."

Paris Fashions In False Teeth

Paris, June 18.—We may safely predict for the coming season that styles in artificial teeth will include their being worn snug-fitting and smoothly cushioned in place by means of the dental plate comfort-powder Corega, procurable at drug stores and dental dealers.

This antiseptic adhesive powder gives a pleasing sense of security to wearers of false teeth. It allows complete mastication of foods with ease, relaxes the facial muscles and prevents sore gums.—Advertisement.

NEW CAST IN 'POOR LITTLE RITZ GIRL'

Those who saw "The Poor Little Ritz Girl" the opening week at the Wilbur Theatre would never recognize Lew Fields' musical comedy now. Charles Purcell, the silver-throated tenor, is now singing and playing the role of the youth who finds a charming, pajamaed lady occupying his flat on his unexpected return. Andy Tombs, who got so many laughs in "Flo Flo," is knocking them out of their seats with his comedy as the physician friend of the hero. There have been one or two minor changes in the cast also, some new and prettier girls, and the dialogue and situations shifted around until it is practically a new show.

Fields plans to take the "Ritz Girl" into New York with the present lineup, and confidently hopes to put over one of the season's hits.

OLYMPIA THEATRES—Large audiences were thrilled time and time again yesterday at Gordon's Scollay Square and Gordon's Olympia, Washington street, where "The Best Man Luck" was the feature photoplay attraction. This picture is a filmization of the celebrated Drury Lane melodrama by Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton. It was converted to the screen by Screen Classics, Inc., and is released by Metro. "The Best Man Luck," is interpreted by an all-star cast. The leading roles are in the hands of such talented players as Kathryn Adams, Jack Holt, Fred Malatesta and Lillie Leslie, with splendid support accorded by Frances Raymond, Emmett King, Robert Dunbar, Jack Underhill and Effie Coney.

At the Amusement Parks

NORUMBEGA PARK—Record crowds attended the performances of "The Courage of Marge O'Doone," in the big open air theatre at Norumbega Park yesterday. "Rio Grande" will be the feature picure the latter half of the week. Dancing, canoeing, and other diversions offered at this resort are bringing the largest attendance in its history.

Mary Pickford in "Suds"

Those who remember Maude Adams, in one of the greatest plays of her career, "O,' O' Me Thumb," will welcome the announcement that Mary Pickford is to play a limited engagement at the Majestic Theatre in the screen version of this great play, under the title of "Suds," by Frederick Fenn and Richard Pryce.

PARAGON PARK—Paragon Park and its famous Palm Garden, with their many and diversified attractions, were crowded yesterday, the crowds exceeding in number anything known in former years. Record attendances have marked this entire season.

This Is Better Than Laxatives

One NR Tablet Each Night For A Week Will Correct Your Constipation and Make Constant Dosing Unnecessary. Try It.

Poor digestion and assimilation mean a poorly nourished body and low vitality. Poor elimination means clogged bowels, fermentation, putrefaction and the formation of poisonous gases which are absorbed by the blood and carried through the body.

The result is weakness, headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, inactive liver, bilious attacks, loss of energy, nervousness, poor appetite, impoverished blood, sallow complexion, pimples, skin disease, and often times serious illness.

Ordinary laxatives, purges and cathartics—salts, oils, calomel and the like—may relieve for a few hours, but real, lasting benefit can only come through use of medicine that tones up and strengthens the digestive as well as the eliminative organs.

Get a 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and take one tablet each night for a week. Relief will follow the very first dose, but a few days will elapse before you feel and realize the fullest benefit. When you get straightened out and feel just right again you need not take medicine every day—an occasional NR Tablet will then keep your system in good condition and you will always feel your best. Remember, keeping well is easier and cheaper than getting well.

Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) are sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

FAILED TO WORK FOR IRELAND

Alleged Leaders, 'Payroll Patriots,' Blamed for Defeat at San Francisco

By JOHN T. LAMBERT.

San Francisco, July 2.—Because of the opposition of the Wilson administration politicians and of some alleged Irish leaders who care more for the return of whiskey and the open saloon than for the liberty of 100,000,000 people fighting for freedom, the Irish recognition plank failed to be adopted by the Democratic National Convention.

A single week of hard work by those whose duty it is to devote their energies to the cause of Irish freedom would have swept the opposition off its feet and won for the Irish patriots the overwhelming indorsement of the convention.

THE CHICAGO FAILURE

The failure of some of the alleged leaders first became evident in Chicago during the Republican convention. While President De Valera and Frank P. Walsh, acclaimed by thousands of people, were sounding the slogan of recognition for Ireland, some of the payroll patriots were damning the Irish cause with faint praise. The same sort of campaign was conducted here in San Francisco.

Grenville S. MacFarland of Boston, who saw the proceedings at the Chicago convention, at once wired Martin M. Lomasney to join him in session for the Democratic convention at San Francisco. Lomasney left Boston without a moment's delay. Arriving in San Francisco, Mr. MacFarland and Mr. Lomasney found the same conditions existing here as at Chicago.

REACH A DECISION.

With the arrival of Frank P. Walsh the decision to make a serious fight for the cause was made at a conference attended by him, Mr. MacFarland, Mr. Lomasney and John J. Fitzgerald, one of the foremost lawyers of Rhode Island, who is prominently known for his successful defense of Mrs. Mohr. Fitzgerald, Lomasney and Thomas A. Niland of Boston called a conference of Democratic delegates favorable to the Irish cause.

The first conference was attended by such a small number that it would have discouraged men less sincere or stouthearted.

By this time, the friends of Irish freedom in San Francisco, a loyal group of men and women anxious to be of service, but wisely determined that they would follow rather than lead, became actively interested. To the Fitzgerald, Lomasney, Niland combination they added a group of young men and women who were willing to work early and late on any task assigned to them.

When the conference was called the third day of the convention had come and less than twenty-four hours aired between the conference and the taking of the votes on the resolutions on the floor of the convention. One hundred delegates attended this conference. "What can we do?" they pleaded. "Tell us what to do and even though the hour is late we will do everything within our power." At this meeting a steering committee was organized and the decision to support recognition plank which DeValera offered was reached, as has been told in these columns.

In the committee on resolutions, seventeen members had voted for the plank. But not one of the committee men was anxious to file the plank as a minority report and thus call it to the attention of the convention for action.

TALKS OF INFLUENCE.

A committee of three minority members of the resolutions committee was invited by the steering committee to attend a conference. Among these three were Nugent of New Jersey and Bourke Cockran of New York.

The steering committee refused to accept the advice of the minority committeemen and upon their departure from the room voted unanimously to adopt a resolution requesting the seventeen of them to sign and submit the minority report to the convention.

The steering committee met up with Edw. L. Doheny of California, the oil magnate. Without a word of remonstrance, Mr. Doheny replied, "Let me have the plank. I'll file it and I'll speak for it if I am the only man in the convention to do it."

Mr. Doheny did all he agreed to do and the appearance of this man on the platform, stating to 13,000 people his inability to make a "good speech" but expressing the hope that his sincerity would make up for his lack of oratorical skill struck a responsive chord in his auditors.

The change of 160 votes in the convention would have reversed the outcome.

TWO FATALITIES MAR THE FOURTH

Two fatalities marked the celebration of the Fourth of July in Boston and vicinity. Several others were injured in fireworks and motor accidents, and a considerable loss was sustained as the result of explosions and fires.

Robert E. Campbell, twenty-one years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm of No. 13 Decatur street, Cambridge, and John Kolowski, ten years old, of No. 59 River street, Brockton, were the two killed.

Campbell met his death when an automobile in which he was riding with three companions went over an embankment into the Sudbury River on the Sudbury road, while the occupants were returning from Marlboro. Campbell's body was recovered. His companions were George B. Madigan, Frank H. Hagan and William Daly, all of North Cambridge. They escaped with slight injuries.

John Kolowski, ten, of Brockton, was killed when struck by an automobile operated by Elmer S. Gormley of Avon on North Main street, Brockton.

MORE DRUNKENNESS ARRESTS THAN IN 1919

Arrests for drunkenness in Boston totalled 284 more in the week-end and holiday than the totals of last year.

The tabulations showed that in the 48 hours from 8 o'clock last Saturday morning until 8 o'clock yesterday morning 211 men and 13 women were taken into custody charged with intoxication. In the same comparative hours last year only 83 men and 8 women were arrested.

George Rollins Heads Prison Ball Team

George Rollins, awaiting sentence for murder at the Charles street jail, captained a victorious baseball nine at the Independence Day celebration at the jail, arranged by Sheriff Keliher. The game, a tight one, was umpired by the sheriff himself.

Other sports, including a team race, a three-legged race, potato race and a tug-of-war. A band concert was enjoyed by all the inmates of the jail in the afternoon. A holiday menu, including ice cream, furnished the inmates by Sheriff Keliher, was served.

11 INJURED BY FIREWORKS

Explosion of Bombs Causes Near Panic in Lincoln Park, Somerville

A panic was narrowly averted when eleven persons were injured, several of them seriously, by the untimely explosion of fifteen bombs during the display of fireworks at Lincoln Park, Somerville. Many persons were crushed by the horror-stricken crowd and it was only due to the quick action of the police that a disaster was prevented.

Miss Margaret Kelleher, aged twenty-three, of No. 155 Lake avenue, Newton Centre, was the most seriously injured. She received a compound fracture of the left leg, and at the Somerville Hospital, where she was removed, it was stated that it may be necessary to amputate her leg.

She was also burned by particles of the exploding bomb.

THE INJURED.

The other ten injured are:

MISS CATHERINE KING, twenty-one, of No. 23 Lake street, Somerville, burned on back of neck, right arm and hand. Taken home.

MRS. THERESA SNYDER, twenty-three, of No. 505 Jackson avenue, Susquehanna, Pa., left leg torn by fragments of a bomb. Somerville Hospital.

MISS ETHEL STEARNS, nineteen, of No. 19 First street, South Boston, stunned by concussion and hair and dress burned. Somerville Hospital.

ROY SMITH of No. 32 Summer street, Somerville, left leg and ear lacerated; taken home.

Fully 15,000 persons were in the area about Lincoln Park when the accident occurred. The previous bombs and set pieces had been set off without mishap and the "good night" display was ignited. The fifteen large bombs attached to the wooden frames, however, dropped to the ground and in some instances landed directly in front of spectators, where they exploded.

SEES DEATH OF LEAGUE IN U.S.

Northcliffe's Correspondent Warns It Is Lesson of Convention

By Universal Service.

London, July 6.—"The lesson of the Democratic convention is that the League of Nations is dead as far as America is concerned."

That in substance is the warning to the British government and people cabled from San Francisco by the correspondent of Northcliffe's Times.

PACT TO BE IGNORED.

"The turmoil over prohibition which both parties have now refused to mix up with the Presidential campaign and the evident determination of the voters to have the Washington government take up America's domestic problems," says the correspondent, "indicate at least the probability that the League will be ignored at the coming session of the present Congress and will be jostled aside by the next Congress, so that even were the Democrats to win, their League and their promises concerning it would be as dead as sea fruit in the mouths of those who think the future of the world and Anglo-American relations still depend upon American adhesion to the League of Nations."

The correspondent represents Samuel Gompers as furious over the failure of the Democratic platform to reflect the radicalism which President Wilson once professed in industrial matters, and declares the people are wondering whether a real American Labor party is to be started now.

IRISH PLANK TOO MODEST.

The dispatch calls the Irish plank too modest to get the Irish votes, "which was the only reason it appeared at all." The correspondents continue:

"The comparative conservatism of the Green plank is due to the complete failure of Eamon de Valera and his cohorts here, as well as in Chicago. Aided by Indian nationalists, who infest the Pacific Coast, they have been holding meetings, attended by less reputable Democratic politicians, and at which they have not improved their standing by hissing President Wilson, as well as Lloyd George and Clemenceau."

20,000 ALUMNI TO VOTE ON HARVARD OVERSEERS

The 20,000 Harvard alumni will have an opportunity next Summer to express their choice for members of the university's board of overseers. The election this year will be the last where it is compulsory to vote in Cambridge on commencement day, no one who is not present at the polling booth being allowed to take part in the election.

This season only 1,800 ballots were cast out of 20,000 graduates. There has been considerable dissatisfaction with the ruling that an alumnus must be on the spot to vote, and as a result the Associated Harvard clubs favor a form of absentee balloting whereby the entire body of graduates can take part in the election if they see fit.

BIG REGISTRATION FOR HARVARD SUMMER SCHOOL

Registration continues at the office of the Harvard Summer School at a brisk rate. Saturday's enrollment was pleasing to Director Whitten, and a still greater number of students are expected to register today and tomorrow. Instruction will start at full speed tomorrow morning. The students will not meet President Lowell as he is abroad, but the director and Mrs. Whittem with Dean Ropes will give them a reception in the Harvard Union next Friday evening.

Money Situation Shows Some Improvement

New England Merchants Are Waiting for Outlook to Clear; An Unusually Quiet Season

New England merchants today are doing little more than mark time. They are waiting for the business outlook to clear before setting sail. Ordinarily a quiet period of the year, this season is unusually dull in leading lines on account of several adverse trade factors. Perhaps the greatest bane is the monetary situation. The Federal Reserve Board and bankers generally are inclined to be optimistic on this score. The board's monthly bulletin affirms that the money situation had "shown distinct improvement during June."

The banks have been putting the brakes on loans for ultra-speculative purposes and forcing many essential industries to reduce their loans. It is the movement of the oncoming crops that is the next problem for them and they are considering resources now for that purpose.

Fortunately the crop outlook is not as dark as at first predicted. A crop as large as last year is now expected and this should bolster up confidence in trade circles all along the line. The size of the crops is one of the biggest factors governing business, and New England factories will quickly reflect any change in the crop outlook.

With bountiful crops it is hard to see the famine that some are talking about. In fact, Europe is far from covering from the ravages of the war and her drain on us should not be so large as formerly.

Cotton Crop Shows Improvement.

Each succeeding estimate of the cotton crop shows improvement. The first estimate of a month ago by the Department of Agriculture indicated the worst condition in history, but last week's forecast showed considerable improvement. There has been an increase in the acreage planted of nearly 400,000 acres, and the crop estimate is now 11,450,000 bales. This is conservative and another million may be added to the yield. With the carry over from last year and new crop about 15,000,000 bales would be available. There is nothing alarming in the raw cotton situation.

The cotton mills are still running, though manufacturers report some easing in demand for goods, in sympathy with general conditions. Lower levels are being sought on print cloths and sheetings and a revision downward of prices for bleached goods seems imminent. On the other hand, manufacturers fear no general depression. There is still a serious shortage of cotton goods, as a result of the war, and Europe and Asia must draw on this country in volume for some time to come.

Woolen and Shoe Industries Quiet.

The woolen and shoe industries are still quiet, though optimism is fast replacing gloom. The New England mills cannot stay closed long before a pinch for goods is felt. Retailers and jobbers will be forced to replace present stocks ere long. Some predict that the wave of shoe sales will create a great scarcity of goods, and that a grand rush for replacements will come next Fall.

The tightening of bank credit, backward season, transportation collapse, etc., have had a beneficial effect in that risky speculators have been driven to cover. Consequently a more orderly method of doing business should ensue. Some complaint is being registered against the Federal Reserve Board "going too far" in forcing merchants to lighten inventories. It is obvious that with scores of factories closed and thousands of workmen on the streets care must be taken not to bring about a more serious situation all around.

Textile mills used 58,560,000 pounds of greasy wool in May, against 66,960,000 pounds in April and 87,300,000 in March. Going back to May, 1918—a war month—74,600,000 pounds were used. This tells the story.

Decline in New Incorporations.

An interesting indication of the way the wind is blowing is the fact that new corporations in Massachusetts have shown a decline. In June, there were 226 charters granted, in May 261, April 296, March 309, February 235 and January last, 231.

The Legislature has increased the minimum fee for a charter under $100,000 from $25 to $50. But the old rate of one-twentieth of one per cent. for over that amount still stands. This was probably raised to get more revenue, for it would be a negligible factor in preventing new incorporations. Out of every 2,000 new incorporations the Legislature dissolves some 1,360 to 1,500 one or two years after the charter has been granted, for failure to make the returns. Many are forced into bankruptcy.

Were this fact more generally known persons might hesitate before they "invest" in stock promotions and give more careful consideration to the character of the offering, assets and management. Massachusetts stands high and a corporation chartered here has some stiff regulations to comply with.

Politics Having Little Effect.

The Presidential election has not had much effect upon business so far. Later on, when promises are made by candidates and the sentiment of the public in receiving them, may cause some hesitancy in new ventures.

Sentiment is pretty well crystallized for a change in the taxation system. The present excess profits tax is working a hardship. Business organizations have banded together to present changes in taxation. This question is essentially for business interests to decide and politics should play no part in it.

It is estimated that the internal revenue receipts for the fiscal year ending June 28, 1920, amounted to $5,080,000,000, or the equivalent to about $250 for every family in the United States. Obviously it is a serious problem and if business is to function properly and production be sustained a fair means of raising this amount should be devised.

SHOE INDUSTRY NEEDS OPTIMISM
Federal Reserve Should Restore Confidence, Says H. I. Thayer

"Optimism" is the slogan Harry I. Thayer, president of the New England Shoe and Leather Association, said today, he was endeavoring to pass along to the shoe and leather trade. But he said unless a word of encouragement is soon forthcoming from the Federal Reserve Board, disaster is liable to overtake many dealers.

"The hide, leather and shoe business," he said, "has been going through a steady slump, and all because of the money stringency, transportation difficulties and bad weather conditions, along with the refusal of the public to pay the high prices demanded for shoes. We have learned that the Federal Reserve system possesses great power. However, the break has gone so far that it is time to restore confidence, as it certainly is not the wish of the Federal Reserve to force dealers into bankruptcy, but something should be forthcoming from this source if possible to restore confidence and courage to forge ahead again."

Mr. Thayer condemned wholesale cancellation of orders by retailers, characterizing that practice as against the ethics of good business and morally unfair. "It is not fair to a manufacturer for a merchant to cancel a lot of goods he has ordered simply because he feels business from his end has begun to wane," he said. "The manufacturer has to stand the loss. While our laws governing contracts are cumbersome, cancellations nevertheless should not be allowed. When the market was advancing, cancellations were unheard of and all contracts were fulfilled.

"New England is the shoe centre of America and it is obvious that if the shoe factories and tanneries here are to be shut down, as many are now doing, our people will suffer. Undue speculation and extravagance were forcing prices out of all reason. This the banks have succeeded in curbing.

"But I see no reason for getting pessimistic. The people must wear shoes and will be bound to be some reaction from these levels pretty soon. I doubt if prices will ever go back to the peak of last Fall, and I do not see how prices can revert to the pre-war level, for other factors preclude that.

America's Fisheries—An Undeveloped Industry of Great Possibilities

In its rich fisheries the United States possesses an undeveloped natural resource which needs only organization, capital and brains to make it one of the nation's greatest industries.

The American fisheries have hitherto been conducted so inefficiently that fish as an important food staple has failed to win the nation-wide popularity and market it deserves. So crude has been the organization of our fisheries, particularly as regards distribution, that fish in sufficient quantities and of good quality has been unobtainable regularly by much of our inland population.

The U. S. Bureau of Fisheries states that there is a huge unsatisfied demand for fish, especially in the Middle West and South. An enormously rich field awaits the wide-awake concern which enters the fish industry properly organized and equipped. In England, where twenty-five years ago the fisheries were in as chaotic a state as here now, more capital is profitably employed in the fisheries than in the American beef industry. The American beef supply is decreasing, and the consumption of fish will constantly grow.

The problems of handling and distributing fish and beef are identical, and progressive concerns are meeting them the right way, equipped with ample capital, fleets of steam trawlers, big central plants and excellent merchandising systems. All honor to these companies for their far-sighted progressiveness!

HONOR HEROES DESPITE BAN

Tablet to Ward 12 Dead Is Placed Before Church After Art Commission Disapproval

The twenty-three dead World War heroes of Ward 12, Roxbury, were honored on the Fourth despite the "artistic" objection of the City Art Commission, that threatened to postpone the exercises in their memory to a less fitting day.

The tablet bearing their names was finally placed on an easel in front of St. Patrick's parochial school, unveiled and dedicated by the Ward 12 Military Aid Society. The Art Commission had refused to allow the tablet in its present form to be placed on the Ward 12 Municipal Building, where it was originally planned to place it.

ELEVENTH HOUR DECISION.

Dr. Hurley, president of the society, said he did not know that any person was to blame. "We tried three months ago to secure a permit to place the tablet on the municipal building and at that time and until a few days ago there was not any person that knew about the Art Commission," said he. "The Superintendent of Buildings was asked permission and the society went here and there and at the eleventh hour, when invitations were extended to the city government, we received a letter from the Mayor's office asking if we knew that permission had to be signed by the Art Commission before the tablet could be put up. The commissioners were visited by me and they criticised the letters, stating they were black letters and not architectural letters and found minor faults with the picture shown them of the tablet. They also criticised the arrangements of the names. They refused to allow it to be fastened to the building but gave permission to hold the dedication in front of the building."

CHURCH GIVES PERMISSION.

Dr. Hurley said he made a proposition to the commission to allow the tablet to be erected temporarily, stating that the maker of the tablet had agreed to make a new one, complying with the commissioner's specifications, and that as soon as the new tablet was completed it could be substituted for the present one. They refused, so it was decided that the society would sooner do anything than to give it to the city.

Fr. Sullivan gave permission to the society to place the tablet anywhere on the church property, and it was decided to fasten it to the wall of the parochial high school.

Dr. Hurley declares that he does not think the tablet would detract from the appearance of any building

Women to Study with Harvard Theologs

The Harvard Summer School of Theology will reopen tomorrow after a lapse of nine years. The school had been conducted annually eleven years up to the session of 1911 when it was thought advisable to discontinue the instruction.

The Rev. W. W. Fenn will act as dean. The sessions of the school will be held in the Semitic museum, where a room has been set aside for the lectures. Standish Hall has been assigned to members of the school, the east wing being reserved for women, the west for men, and certain suites get aside for married couples.

An innovation in the conduct of the school will be the admission of wives of ministers who are students to lectures without charge for tuition.

The aim of the school is to provide an opportunity for clergy and others interested in religion and ethics to meet for the study of these subjects. Social workers, laymen and women concerned with the religious life of the day are expected to find the course an instructive one.

2 TAKE POISON IN DEATH PACT

Leave Tragic Notes Requesting Double Burial; Girl, Aged 18, Will Recover

By Universal Service.

New York, July 6.—Frank Grantelli and Mrs. Alma Newman took lodging here in a suicidal pact at a fashionable uptown hotel, the Gregorian. The woman was living apart from her husband. The couple registered at the hotel as Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grant of Germantown, Pa.

Each left a note. The man wrote to his father, who lives in the Bronx, that he loved Mrs. Newman and that they had decided to die together. "Bury me in one grave with my dear Alma," he said.

The girl wrote to her mother. She said she loved Frank and wished to be buried in the same grave with him.

Grantelli, who is thirty-one, is expected to die. Mrs. Newman, who is eighteen, will recover.

THE DEAF HEAR

Mr. John Curran resides at 17 Washington street, Quincy, Mass. He says: "I had been deaf for 7 years. So deaf that I could hear scarcely anything at all. Terrible noises in my head made life miserable for me. I had been to the ear and ear infirmary and had the cartilage in my nose removed to help my rapidly failing hearing. Instead of improving my hearing after this operation I grew rapidly worse until my condition was as I have already stated. I read of the Osmo-Chemic physicians and the remarkable results of their treatment in cases of people who were deaf like myself. I had them treat me and the result was much better than I dared hope. For I hear again and the noises are gone."

The wonderful power of the X-RAY TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonderful results in diseases of every description—CATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASE, BIRTHMARKS, MOLES, FACIAL BLEMISHES, ETC.

BRAVES MAKE NEW START IN FAREWELL GAME WITH DODGERS

RUDOLPH PICKED TO WIN

Double Holiday Defeat Sad Blow to Great Army of Local Fans

By NICK FLATLEY.

Our Braves, having shocked the biggest crowd they ever hoped to entertain at the wigwam, depart for the far places this p. m intent on shocking their enemies to make up for the disastrous holiday. They took the Dodgers on for the ultimate game of that series this speckled season as a finale.

They owe said Dodgers a farewell defeat, and likewise owe a victory to themselves. They had the first game yesterday all put in the refrigerator, and then exploded. They continued to crash with loud detonation throughout the mighty bout.

Perhaps the blowup was fitting, the day being what it was, and it wasn't terribly harmful to the tribal chances of ultimate glory, as the league leaders were likewise doubly torpedoed and still remain but four and a half games over the top.

A double victory as you can see would have rocketed the Braves right into the middle of the first division, and a final defeat didn't harm them a lot, so they start for the trails in fairly good frame of mind.

Hotel and Railroad Circuit Games on Card

The team has a peculiarly optimistic spirit anyhow, rising above disaster with superb nonchalance. Their pennant dreams haven't been at all shattered, and even Manager Stallings was inclined to overlook that terrible Independence Day which came close to being a record after a double bombarding.

The big crowd was a happy omen of what may be the rule if the Braves outfit has a successful time in alien climes. They pay the hotel and railroad circuit until July 27, and in that time anything can happen in the wild race.

The campaign has swung along so tightly thus far that some of the teams are bound to crack soon, and judging temperaments, records, strength, and everything else, the natives will easily outlast some of the rivals.

The Western swing should not be overly hard on the hurlers, either, as only a couple of double-headers are listed. With five hurlers and no overtime work, the Georgian pilot of the outfit can get along very nicely.

Small Richard Rudolph is down to fighting weight and was ready to get into the pastime today unless it was decided best to reserve him to open on the road.

PLAN TO HOLD ROWING REGATTA ON SUNDAY

It was planned by the New England Amateur Rowing Association committee to hold the regatta postponed because of the heavy kick-up in the Charles River Basin, Sunday afternoon. However, there is some doubt whether the Metropolitan police authorities will allow the staging of the event Sunday. If they forbid it, it will be held saturday afternoon.

EXPECT RAY TO BREAK RECORD

Illinois A. C. Runner Should Win Mile Event Easily at Olympic Trials

By CHARLES E. PARKER

In several of the events of the approaching Olympic tryouts at the Harvard Stadium new world's records appear possible, in one event such a record appears probable

That event is the mile run and the probable winner and, providing good conditions prevail, the probable record breaker, is John Ray of the Illinois A. C., the greatest mile runner ever developed in this country and generally regarded the greatest the world ever has known.

It is true Joie has not yet traveled the distance in the time registered by Norman Taber, but neither Taber nor John Paul Jones, the former record holder, or, in fact, any other miler known, has been so consistently close to the record time over a stretch of several years as has this midget Chicago youth.

Joie has traveled the mile under 4 minutes 26 seconds more times than you can shake a stick at. Whenever Joie steps into his stride all the existing records crumples in its shoes and picks out the nearest exit. Joie now holds the indoor records for the one mile, two mile three-quarter mile and 1,000-yard runs, and he has announced his intention of going after the outdoor one mile mark of 4 minutes 12 3 5 seconds one week from Saturday.

Ray Will Not Lack Competition

Joie won't lack for competition in this event, and there are quite a number who, having observed the performances of Larry Shields, the intercollegiate champion, and Harold Cuthill, the Eastern champion, believe one will be forced to set a new world's mark in order to win the event. The list of the men from most entrants and their best marks for the present season follows:

One mile run—Joie Ray, I. A. C., 4m. 18s.; Larry Shields, Penn State 4m. 19s.; Harold Cuthill, B. A. A., and L. G. Watson, Syracuse, 4m. 22s.; Joe Connolly, B. A. A., 4m. 24s.; George Goodwin, Bowdoin, 4m. 24 2-5 s.; Dennie O'Connel, Harvard, 4m. 24 4-5s.; Larry Brown, Penn., 4m. 25s.; Mike Devanney, Milrose, 4m. 25 1-5s.; Yates, Illinois, 4m. 24 2-5s.; Schardt, Chicago A. A., 4m. 28s.; Bob Crawford, Lafayette, 4m. 31 2-5s., Hudson, Columbia, 4m. 34 2-5s.; McDermott, Cornell, 4m. 34 4-5s.; Sprott, California, 4m. 42s.

LUXURIANT HAIR FOR YOU?

Of course you desire it. Then read of this wonderful hair elixir, KOTALKO

Worry no more about your hair, Miss, Mrs. or Mr! Throw away those timid lotions that are only drying your scalp and doing no good whatsoever. Don't shampoo the natural oils out of your scalp.

There's a hair elixir that is meeting with increasing favor, for it is altogether different from the scented lotions, excitants and tonics. It is Kotalko, extracted from the Three Kingdoms of Nature and including twelve ingredients, one of which is the genuine Bay Rum, and not the cheap, fusel oil article. Kotalko is not a dye, no matter what condition your hair is in—it will surely do the work. Kotalko is recommended on the principle that added Nature in giving me a full growth of hair when I was bald (see the picture below) and it is doing wonders for others—men, women and children.

I would fill this whole paper with letters from grateful users, but the enthusiasm is great when a person finds, after all else has failed, that Kotalko is just what Nature needed as aid in producing a splendid growth of hair.

You may now obtain the genuine Kotalko under my guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Satisfy yourself. Rupture Kills 7000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunates had neglected treatment or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you merely protecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of just what they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to take a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place; therefore, cannot chafe, or gouge. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be worn while you work and while you rest. No straps, buckles or springs attached. Sent on trial to prove the herbal system of treatment described on the rupture CAN be

Wool Consumption

During May this year American mills consumed 58,600,000 pounds of wool, grease basis, as compared with 43,000,000 in May last year. But April, 1920, consumption was 66,900,000 pounds. The decrease in consumption shows how mill activity slackened.

Buy Options On German Marks Good for Six Months

The fact that German money is selling at a small fraction of its normal value should convince even the most skeptical that purchases now offer a wonderful opportunity for large profits. Exchange experts predict a sharp advance within the next few months.

10,000 Marks Can Be Controlled for $50.00

100,000 Marks Can Be Controlled for $400.00

During options limits your risk, as the original cost constitutes your entire liability. The cost of an option involves the use of about one-sixth as much money as would be required to buy marks outright. Should the marks need an option advance to only one-half normal value, the returns on $50.00 would be over $700.00.

Send remittance, stating number of marks you wish to option at each rate. We urge prompt action, as exchange fluctuates rapidly.

"RYAN" STEELS MAKE GAINS

Oils Up and Studebaker Is Leader Among Motors; Equipments Advance; Rails Firm

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, being near the highest level of the morning. Steadied Ryan steels made gains while oils were up, equipments had advanced and rails improved. Studebaker was the leader among motors, Vanadium and Republic were among issues to make the best showing. Large gains were made by American Woolen common, Canadian Pacific, Cuban American, Kennecott, Pennsylvania, Pan American, Stromberg, Retail Stores, Tobacco Products and U. S. Rubber. They were all two or three points higher. Republic led the list with a gain of almost five. Call money remained at 9 per cent. The market was tame at the start but gained some activity during the first hour, transactions for that period totalling around $175,000 shares.

MARKET BEGAN WITH GAINS.

At the reopening after the holiday the market was firm and all issues advancing on early transactions. Gains were small on the average but there were a number to advance 3 points or more. The upward movement was not forceful and soon halted, the market stationary for a while, the market made further improvement and during the end of an hour many issues were up above the opening level. Trading was tame on the whole and the market had no distinctive phase. Vanadium more than recovered its dividend, general strength was attributed chiefly to the covering movement which began last week. Very few orders to buy from the outside accumulated over the three-day shutdown. The public showed little interest in stocks and many professional traders remained out of town. Liberty bonds were higher.

STATEMENTS BY BANKS.

The New York bank statement for last week was favorable in the main, showing an increase of more than $25,000,000 in surplus reserve and more than $67,000,000 gain in net demand deposits. The net time deposit gain was approximately $8,000,000. The increase in loans was $3,474,000 to $7,000,000 and deposits decreased more than $65,000,000.

The New York Federal Reserve bank's reserve ratio increased a little, being 38.6 per cent. as compared with 38.2 per cent. for the week before. The ratio showing by the Federal Reserve Bank system was not as good. The ratio was 43.6 per cent. as against 42.8 per cent. against 43.6 per cent.

Generally speaking, there was no appreciable change in the financial situation in any section of the country. But there is hope that it will be easier by the end of this week.

CONTROL OR OWN BIG TRACTS OF FUEL LAND

Ownership or control of big tracts of fuel lands in the southwest is advanced as an evidence of the security of the Lecorgan Investments, with offices at No. 40 Court street, Boston. This concern offers for a limited period secured leases of oil, gas and mineral rights on well-defined geological structures in the Mid-Continent field.

"We control," it is stated, "16,600 acres in the oil-bearing counties of Texas with boring rigs on a 2,000-acre tract. We own 160 acres of coal land in Oklahoma estimated to yield 750,000 tons of bituminous coal.

"The bituminous tract is in Okmulgee County, Oklahoma, and it is believed that coal can be commercially there. It is further stated, 'Their present operations on a 2,000-acre tract are in Grayson County, Texas, where the axis of the Preston Anticline passes through the northern section of their property. This structure has recently been recommended by the United States Government Geological Survey as being favorable for the production of oil and gas, details of which recommendations are found in Professional Paper H-126, published by the Department of the Interior. There are four separate companies carrying on operations in this immediate section, many of them with rigs erected ready for drilling, some of them already operating, and three having been reported recently to have brought in production."

Mr. H. H. Locke is president, and mentioned as "the personnel of this company" are Dr. Charles R. Morgan and Dr. Robert F. Moulter of the Stock Ray and Mr. Frederick S. Coffin of Brookline. Business and sales supervision is by Mr. C. M. Hunt.

Oil Well Completions

Oil well completions during June exceeded those for May by 141. The Oil City Derrick reports 3,124 completions in June, and these were credited with 265,333 barrels of fresh production. But May fresh production exceeded this total by 15,725 barrels.

MARKET QUIET, PRICES UP

Boston Market Shows Little Change Over the Holidays —Curb Issues Advance

Gains were the rule on the Boston Stock Exchange when business was resumed but the advance was feeble, with the exception of Edison, which went up two points on its first sale. The market began dull and was listless all the morning. It was a repetition of the same general character as last week. But it had a good undertone.

Among issues to make fractional gains during the forenoon were Boston Elevated, Island Creek, United Shoe, Swift, Simms Magneto, Swift & Co. and Bigheart.

Beaver Board was a little were American Telephone, American Woolen preferred, Carson Hill and Waldorf.

CURB STEADY AT START.

The Curb market had a steady start and was fairly active at the outset and later. Most issues advanced on the first rallies and the list had an upward trend later. High priced oils were inclined to be easier. Among issues showing an early trading were Mutual, Eureka and Arizona Silver. Dadding sold at a new record highest price. There is a big short interest outstanding in this issue. Issues to make gains at the opening were Arizona Silver, Crystal, Allied Oil and Verde Mines. Most stocks were Eureka, Mutual, Gilliland and Simms Petroleum.

At the end of an hour Arizona Silver was up 1 cent at 1¼ cents, Mutual 3 cents at 83 cents, Ruby 4 cents at 34 cents and Daddy 2 at 14. Crystal was off 1 cent at 24 cents.

Boston Financial Notes

The balance sheet shows:

A. Waller Morton has retired from the firm of Richard Rushton & Co. and G. H. Rizza has been admitted as partner.

Benjamin H. Wilson has retired from the firm of H. C. Wainwright & Co.

Newly chartered Massachusetts corporations include Wilton Lumber Co., Boston, capital $300,000; Big Five Mica Products, Inc., Boston, capital $500,000; Eastern Optical Company of Sturbridge, capital $100,000; Lynn Gas & Electric Co., Boston, capital $200,000; Independent Nail & Packing Co., Boston, capital $1,000,000; Lynn Gas & Electric Co., Boston, capital $100,000; Boston Textile Co., Boston, capital $1,000,000.

Capitalization increases include: Cobb Electric Appliance Corp., from $50,000 to $600,000; Guaranty Security Corporation, from $100,000 to $1,000,000; West Roxbury Manufacturing Corporation, from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000; Lynn Gas & Electric Co., from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000.

The Pneumatic Scale Corporation, Ltd., Quincy, will manufacture elevator, pneumatic and other machines, has applied for a Massachusetts charter with $1,000,000 capitalized at $1,500,000.

Wright International has declared a dividend of $1.20 per share, payable August 20 to stockholders of record July 15.

BUYING OF LUXURIES SWELLS IMPORT TRADE

During the fiscal year ended by July imports into the United States aggregated $5,000,000,000 as compared with imports valued at $1,894,000,000 during the year immediately preceding the war. Luxuries brought from abroad are said to constitute a large extent for the greater increase, but manufacturing materials are another of the larger items. Imports more than $2,000,000,000 for the 1920 year against $635,000,000 for the 1914 period.

As regards the increase in luxuries imported, they are striking in many cases. "Take," says the National City Bank, "the single group, diamonds and other precious stones. The total of the entire group for the year 1920 is in round terms $120,000,000 against $24,000,000 in 1914. Diamonds alone are $70,000,000 as against $25,000,000 in 1914, pearls about $13,000,000 as against $4,000,000 in 1914."

Zinc Mines Shut Down

Because the market for zinc has been so sluggish of late, 90 per cent. of the producing mines in the Joplin, Mo., district, have ceased operations. Although it is announced that mining will be resumed in a few days, it is doubted if much is done until demand greatly improves. Many expect to go to work in harvest fields, or have a chance to. During this year zinc has declined from 12 cents to 7½ cents a pound. The Joplin district produces half of the entire country's output.

County and City Loans

Barnstable County Mass., has awarded $12,000 bridge loan, coupon bonds, dated July 1, to Dennis Port Company, Inc., bidding at 6.40 per cent.

Bristol County, Mass., treasurer has awarded $50,000 loan of $50,000 to authorize taxes, dated July 8 and payable December 2, 1920, to Jose, Parker & Co., at 6.85 per cent. Only other bidder was Harris, Forbes & Co., at 6.88.

BROKERS

A silver issue of unquestioned merit will be called to the attention of the investing public in the near future.

This is not a stock jobbing scheme and is not to be confused with the many uncertain prospects now before the public.

The company is already a large producer paying satisfactory dividends and is destined to become one of America's largest silver producers.

A conservative broker will be given a very attractive contract to assist in the distribution of the shares.

BILLIONS LOST BY ENGLAND

Half of Loans to European Allies Now Credited to 'Profit and Loss'

Great Britain has sparently come to the conclusion that at least half of the $8,665,000,000 sum she loaned to her Allies during the world war will have to be clapped to "profit and loss." That ex-British Chancellor of the Exchequer is among those who hold the view is indicated in a study of "English Public Finance" issued by the Bankers Trust Company of New York.

England, the study shows, loaned to the various European countries about $1,500,000,000 more than she borrowed from the countries, principally the United States. On March 31, 1920, her advances to the Allied Governments had reached the following amounts:

France	$14,000,000
Russia	4,000,000
Belgium	2,000,000
Serbia	7,000,000
Portugal, Greece, etc.	20,000,000
British Empire	8,000,000
Total	$1,731,100,000

In addition to this total England had advanced about $500,000,000 to her dominions. No interest has been received from European countries, except in one special instance, but interest is added to the principal of their debts in Britain.

"Further advances, to various countries provided for in the estimates of 1920-21 will," it is said, "raise the total by March 31, 1921, to approximately $9,000,000,000."

The Chancellor of the Exchequer in his recent budget speech estimated the advances to the allies as probably realizable at about 50 per cent. of their face value. This would afford an offset of about $5,000,000,000 against Great Britain's gross debt.

Should this amount be realizable, it is estimated that the British national debt may be placed at $30,000,000,000. It would then stand in the proportion of 30 per cent. of the national wealth, which is estimated at about $120,000,000,000. This is about the same ratio of debt to British national wealth as prevailed at the end of the Napoleonic wars in 1815. It indicates that Great Britain is not confronted today with a greater burden than has been met on other occasions.

JACCHIA UNDER UNION BAN

Federation of Musicians Will Not Permit Members to Play for Him

Agide Jacchia, conductor of the Pops for the past three seasons, and one of the best known operatic conductors in America, has been engaged to conduct the open air performance of "Aida" at Braves Field on September 1, a production which is expected to be the greatest and most spectacular performance of opera ever seen in America.

When Jacchia was engaged, the management of the Pilgrim performance of "Aida," as the production is called, was not aware of any obstacle to prevent a well known opera conductor from conducting opera.

George W. Stewart, the celebrated band leader and manager, was asked at the same time to secure an orchestra, of 150 and a stage band of fifty for the production from the Boston Musicians' Union.

Because Jacchia has conducted the Pops, composed of Boston Symphony players, the American Federation of Musicians will not permit union musicians to play under his baton, thus bringing up a new feature of the controversy which is raging between the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the union.

H. P. Lieby, secretary and treasurer of Local No. 9, A. F. of L., has made the following statement in a letter to Mr. Stewart:

"In answer to your inquiry of the 29th ultimo, I am constrained to advise you that, in accordance with our Federation laws, it would be impossible for our musicians to perform under Mr. Jacchia's direction, as he is an expelled member of the Federation and conducting an organization unfair to the A. F. of M."

Up to the present time there has been no hard and fast rule regarding conductors, and leaders have frequently led a union orchestra one night and a non-union orchestra another without getting into difficulties.

As the "Aida" production will require the largest orchestra which ever played the wonderful music, a chorus of one thousand, a ballet of one hundred, and a cast of world renowned soloists, the post of conductor is a great honor. Mr. Jacchia was selected because of his popularity with Boston music lovers and his long operatic experience.

Jacchia came to this country with Nazzani some fifteen years ago and has conducted in the leading opera houses of the country with great success. Since becoming conductor of the Pops he has lived in Boston.

MEASURES THAT WOULD CURE MOST OF THE TROUBLES AND TENDENCIES WHICH DISTIESS AND ALARM US TODAY

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

Plucky Fight Made for Irish Liberty in Convention at Eleventh Hour

Senator Walsh, John J. Fitzgerald of Providence, R. I., Martin M. Lomasney of Boston and Thomas A. Niland of Boston covered themselves with honor by the fight they made for oppressed people in the national Democratic convention at San Francisco.

A dispute, as usual, between the sympathizers of poor Ireland's struggle for liberty and the interest which a great many Eastern delegations, particularly in New York and New Jersey, had in the liquor question, left the cause of the stricken nations without a champion until the eleventh hour. But the arrival of the Rhode Island delegation, containing Mr. Fitzgerald, the hasty expedition of Mr. Lomasney across the continent, the courage and industry of Mr. Niland soon brought order out of chaos. A meeting was called of those who ought to be right on the question, and they received some very plain talk.

The Hon. Bourke Cockran of New York declared that he did not think there was any use to make the fight, for he and the convention were interested in the liquor question.

At this, Delegate Niland leaped to his feet and shaking his fist under the famous orator's nose, asked if he meant to tell the meeting that the delegates from New York, New Jersey, Ohio and Illinois considered the liquor question more important than the liberty of four million human beings of his own flesh and blood and tens of millions in other lands.

Mr. Cockran paled under Niland's fierce attack, the committee refused to accept Mr. Cockran's judgment and voted unanimously that the fight should be made.

It was the eleventh hour. There was no time to organize and to convince the delegates, but Senator Walsh, and a Congressman from Connecticut, and a judge from New Jersey, were chosen as the champions to make the fight, and in the brief time these men had for their arguments to the convention they did splendidly. Walsh closed the discussion for Ireland, and the Massachusetts delegates were proud of his effort.

The friends of liberty came nearer defeating the Wilson majority in the convention on their plank than any other fight that was made. They received three times as many votes as Bryan received. A hundred more votes would have carried the day, and those hundred could have been obtained easily if the slightest seasonable effort had been made.

A Neglected Patriot of 1775, Haym Salomon

Republics forget quickly, hence the saying that they are ungrateful. Search your school history of the United States and you will not find a word about Haym Salomon. Yet had it not been for the patriotism and financial acumen of this Polish Jew, the United States might have died in its infancy.

Your schoolbooks tell you that Robert Morris was the financier of the American Revolution. They do not tell you how much he was aided by Haym Salomon.

Salomon came to this country from Lissa, Poland, in 1772. He was then thirty-two years old. When the Revolution began he threw himself into it with all his energy. He was imprisoned by the British for two years, charged with spying. As a prisoner he fomented discontent among the Hessian troops.

He escaped in 1778 and joined Morris in Philadelphia. As fiscal agent of the Continental Congress abroad he negotiated large loans and subsidies from France and Holland. He put his entire personal fortune of $660,000—an immense one for those times—into the patriot cause, and none of it was ever repaid.

After the revolution he founded the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce and prospered as a banker. But neither during his life nor since his death, in 1785, has adequate recognition been given to him. When the British again attacked us and burned the Capitol in Washington in 1814 all his papers and records of the Government's indebtedness to him were destroyed.

In 1915 a movement was started in New York by Louis Friedman to induce the Congress to recognize Haym Salomon's great services by voting a sum sufficient to establish at Washington a truly national university, to be the world's foremost post-graduate school and research centre.

Mr. Friedman estimates that the Salomon loan of $660,000, made in 1775, compounded, today exceeds $150,000,000. A fraction of this sum would support the institution and give a national basis for much of the research work now carried on "philanthropically" by the Rockefeller, Sage and Carnegie Foundations.

The realization of this fine ideal is perhaps less practicable now than in 1915. But some tangible recognition of Haym Salomon's invaluable contribution to the making of America is a debt of honor far too long overdue.

How Elwell Began

He Might Have Been a Model

Copyright, 1920, Star Company

The Rev. Dr. Straton of New York finds a most important "warning to youth" in the mysterious death of Elwell, the gambler and social parasite. If Elwell had lived and ended a little differently, clergymen would have found an excellent moral for youth in his life.

When he was very young, a clerk in a bank, Elwell's lungs went wrong. The doctor said, "Leave the bank," and he did. He hadn't a dollar. A friend who knew him as an extraordinarily skilful player at the New York Whist Club—that was in the days before BRIDGE whist—said, "Come and teach my family to play whist, it is good exercise for the mind, and I will give you good wages."

Soon the broken down bank clerk was getting Ten Dollars an hour for teaching whist. When bridge whist became popular he had ten and twenty in a class, and made as much as $100 and $200 an hour.

There was his chance to build up an example instead of a warning for young people. But what he made rapidly he spent more rapidly still. Some one put a bullet in his brain, and the clergymen, mindful of duty, are preaching about him.

Moral: If you earn rapidly, save rapidly and keep your reputation.

How It Looks Now

More Truth Than Poetry

Her Heart's Desire

By S. E. KISER

WIFIE'S in the country letting
People think I must be great,
And the bills that I am getting
Keep me working hard and late.
Our apartment has been rented
Till the leaves begin to fall;
Many times I have repented,
But it can't be helped at all.

IT was strictly necessary
To bring our expenses down,
Therefore it occurred to Mary
To pack up and leave the town.
"We can save a lot of money
If we rent our place," said she,
"So I'll have to leave you, honey—
But you must be true to me!"

I'M afraid that it will take me
Long to save the cash to pay
What it cost her to forsake me—
Bills are coming every day;
Bills for hats and shoes and dresses
That she thought she'd need out there;
Every one, she writes me, guesses
I'm a multi-millionaire.

I AM growing thinner daily;
In the places where I feed
Beauties do not gather gayly,
Things are modest there, indeed.
With my spirit heavy-weighted,
I am on the downward pitch—
But my darling has created
The impression that I'm rich.

WHY GARDENS GO TO THE BAD

One of the worst things about a garden is that the things planted in it don't come to full development during the first few weeks of glad enthusiasm.

Letters to the Editor

Postal Ruling

Editor Boston American:

I wish to call attention to Postmaster-General Burleson's ruling that all employes in the postal service who have reached the age of seventy years must retire. Here we are, clerks and carriers, being thrown out when some of us are perfectly able to do the work required. I myself have not a physical defect and there are many others like me. I claim that it is a wrong interpretation of Congressman Sehlbach's bill. It seems a cruel and needless action to those who can still do their duty and the public should know about it.

Your Own Psychic Powers

Among the men and women writing of spiritism, Basil King's work stands alone for its obvious sincerity of purpose, its depth of knowledge and its application to every day life as we on this planet are living it.

In "The First Works" in this month's Cosmopolitan he comes closer than ever to giving us a real, personal vision of what we ourselves may and could accomplish by the free and intelligent use of our own psychic powers.

Mr. King disagrees with most of the existing schools of psychic thought in this article — he launches out for himself in a masterful way—and whether you believe him or not he will give you a new and broader conception of what spiritism really means, interpreted in terms of your own daily life and habits.

Indeed, for the past year, Basil King has gone further toward what must be the eventual solution of psychic phenomena than any other writer on this subject.

In this number of Cosmopolitan, notable for the variety and the excellence of its novels, stories and special features, are also Meredith Nicholson, Edgar A. Guest, Fannie Hurst, Peter B. Kyne, P. G. Wodehouse, John Galsworthy, Will Payne, Frank R. Adams, Zoe Aiken, Gouverneur Morris, Percival Gibbon, George Ade.

Ye TOWNE GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office

By K. C. B.

IT WAS the last series of
THEY PLAY at home
in New York.
AND I'VE quite forgotten.
WHAT INNING it was.
BUT WHERE I sat.
THERE WAS a young lady.
RIGHT NEXT to me.
AND UNATTACHED.
AND APPARENTLY timid.
AND SHE looked at me.
AND AT the man.
AT HER other side.
AND HE was fat.
AND VERY warm.
AND I wasn't so fat.
NOR YET so warm.
AND SHE chose me.
AND SAID to me.
THAT IT was the first time.
SHE'D BEEN to a game.
AND THE reason she came.
WAS TO see Mr. Ruth.
AND WOULD I tell her.
WHEN HE made a home run.
AND I said I would.
AND WHATEVER inning.

IT HAPPENED in.
I'VE FORGOTTEN now.
BUT THE Babe came up.
WITH HIS mighty bat.
AND THEN the hush.
WHEN BABE swings back.
AND WAITS the ball.
AND THEN the ball.
AND THEN the crash.
AND EVERY one.
EXCEPT THIS girl.
STOOD UP and yelled.
AS THE ball sped on.
AND INTO the stand.
WHERE THE right field lies.
AND THEN the Babe.
WITH HAT in hand.
AND A smile on his face.
AS HE ambled back.
TO THE players' bench.
AND THE cheering ceased.
AND WE all sat down.
AND I told the girl.
WHAT BABE had done.
AND SHE thanked me sweetly.
AND THE warm fat man.
OOZED ONTO her seat.
AND THE game went on.

I THANK you.

BRITAIN IS WARNED OF TAX REVOLT

By Lord Leverhulme,

Known as England's greatest merchant prince; the world's biggest soap maker

LONDON, July 6.—As the result of the system of taxing industry now being rigorously enforced by the chancellor of the exchequer, Austen Chamberlain, England is confronted with a greater danger than that arising from her war indebtedness; it is the danger of an inevitable revolution, which will come to the British Isles swift as a lightning flash when multitudinous unemployment stalks through the crowded streets of our manufacturing cities.

This is the spectre I should like to see haunting the treasury; not the spectre of a debt which is nothing to the resources of the British Empire.

Without capital, the British Empire consists of unhewn forests, undug minerals, unploughed prairies, and rivers running to waste. Aided by capital, strengthened by confidence and practising the thrift of our fathers, the British race can win all this enormous wealth for the advantage of the whole community. We can improve the level of general comfort and gradually extinguish our debt.

It is the surplus profits of her business that have made England the predominant figure in the commerce of the whole world. Without those profits, all the courage of her industrialists, all the wisdom of her statesmen, all the advantages of her geographical situation would have been in vain.

When my income was $250,000 a year I lived in a house that cost $175. Every penny I could spare went into my business. By the re-employment of my surplus capital my business was expanded. That is the way all business expands. And if the State takes that surplus in taxation there can be no expansion.

In my opinion, wages will not come down. That being so, we must have only one concernment to multiply our products. More ships, more factories, more towns, better machinery, better organization and better government. If the individual is to find life easier and happier, production must increase. We ought to care very little whether wages are $5 or $10 a day, and care a great deal whether our systems of organization and production are the absolute best that science and experience can accomplish. We must expand or perish.

WORLD FULL OF FAMILY PRIDE SNOBS

By Beatrice Fairfax

"I AM my own ancestor," said a famous Frenchman when questioned about his ancestry.

There's a magnificent wisdom about his reply. I've always intended writing a bit on the topic, and now in today's mail along comes a letter giving me the impetus to say my say on a subject near my heart.

It doesn't matter where you start. It's where you go that counts.

From the point of view of aristocratic lineage who were Abraham Lincoln, Napoleon Bonaparte and James J. Hill? Sons of the people, peasant farmer lads—nobodies. It's the nobodies who strive who make the somebodies who arrive

But before we generalize, let's read the story of our own day—the letter of the little girl who wonders if she has a right to marry the man she loves without bringing to him a family tree rooted in fine soil.

Miss Nobody's Letter

"I am a little Miss Nobody of twenty-one, coming from God only knows where, going God only knows where. When I was a little tot I was adopted by my now foster parents, not for love of me, but because they were an elderly married couple with no children of their own. So off to an asylum they hied themselves and picked me out much as you would—well, an apple or a turnip. They took me home and there I am yet. But they neglected to reckon with the fact that something more than food and clothing and four walls make a home, that sympathy and understanding are necessary in helping a young life to grow and develop.

"Once I made ready to leave. But how could I desert the people who took me in when everyone else had cast me aside?

"And now the one big, true thing has come into my life—the gentlest, sincerest, the sweetest love that ever came into the life of a girl. My great ambition in life is to make him happy and be a good wife to him.

"But have I the right to allow this boy—he is nothing more—to marry me, considering what I am? Would I be doing him a wrong? My heritage and all that pertains to it has drifted into oblivion. Will there be sin and shame some day to cause him unhappiness and trouble? I am a foundling. No one has ever known anything of me. My mother deserted me, and what does that indicate? Is the love and help I stand ready to give the man I marry enough—have I the right to let him take any chance with me? Just one of many."

Has Right to Happiness

Who will question this girl's right to all the happiness life can bring her thirsty soul?

If her mother sinned, why should a merciful God not be emulated by a merciful society—and the debt cancelled?

If her mother only suffered, shall the child who is her immortality be doomed also to suffering?

Child, child! Don't you know that you have rare gifts to bring the man who loves you—your own sweet, radiant, understanding heart, your tender longings, your thoughtful mind, your beautiful soul.

You long to make the man you love happy. You appreciate his tenderness. What could anyone bring him rarer than love and appreciation?

Lineage, the heritage of race, is only a drop in the bucket of the future. The inheritance you can pass on to future generations will be rooted in your own nature. You've developed beauty and appreciation in it. You have a thoughtful mind and a seeing eye. Your heart is attuned to the exquisite things of life. Perhaps this may be in part your heritage from your little dead mother. Perhaps it is just an expression of your own sturdy yet dainty soul.

You have much to give. From a practical point of view you ought to make a splendid wife. And see how the words of Browning bless your desires:

"For God above is great to grant as mighty to make, and creates the love to reward the love."
